GOVERNOR WILLIAMS.

ON. JOSEPH HARTWELL WILLIAMS was born in Augusta, Maine, February 15, 1814, being the only son of Reuel Williams and Sarah Lowell, daughter of Hon. Daniel Cony, who came to Maine from Massachusetts in the year 1778, and settled in that part of Hallowell which is now Augusta. Like his father, Mr. Williams has resided in his native town from his birth. He was named after a notable farmer in Massachusetts, whose remarkable industry, intelligence, probity and thrift were regarded by appreciative friends as constituting elements of character worthy of imitation, and they were early and often eulogized by the father with a view to stimulate like excellence in the son. Young Williams enjoyed the best advantages for acquiring an education. At the age of twelve years he was sent from home to a boarding-school for boys, in the family of Rev. Hezekiah Packard, S. T. D., of Wiscasset, and later became a student at the Gardiner Lyceum, then at the height of its prosperity. In 1829 he entered the Classical Institute at Mount Pleasant, in Amherst, Mass., a school of like grade and excellence as the celebrated Round Hill School, in the adjoining town of Northampton.

Mount Pleasant Institute was highly recommended by Rev. Dr. Tappan, of Augusta, whose son, Rev. Benjamin Tappan, D. D., of Norridgewock, accompanied Williams to Amherst and became his chum and fellow student. Williams remained at Mount Pleasant until the summer of 1830, when he entered the Freshman class of Harvard College. From the outset he became a diligent and exemplary student, and to the end of his college career maintained a high rank among the best scholars in his class. In his Senior year he was honored by his classmates as their choice for class orator, and delivered the valedictory oration at the class ceremonies which closed the academic year. Upon leaving college in 1834 he entered Dane Law School at Cambridge, where he enjoyed and highly prized the instruction of Professors Joseph Story and Simon Greenleaf for the greater part of two years, and then returned to Augusta to complete his law studies in his father's office.

He was admitted to the bar in 1837, and immediately succeeded to the lucrative practice of his father, who retired from the profession on being elected that year to a seat in the U. S. Senate. From that period young Williams was busily occupied in the practice of law until July, 1862, when the decease of his father, and the consequent cares of settling his estate, made it necessary for him to withdraw from a profession well suited to his taste, and to the attainment of whose honors and emoluments he had devoted the prime of his life and the ripe years of middle age. It was in the early part of the year 1862 that he received, at the hands of Governor Washburn, the compliment of a nomination to a seat upon the bench of the Supreme Judicial Court of Maine, but, in view of the increasing age and infirmities of his father, then close upon his eightieth year, and the necessity of giving his undivided attention to family interests, he put aside the tempting offer and declined a position which, under other circumstances, would have been regarded by him as the crowning honor of his life.

It was in the year 1857 that Mr. Williams was first called to take part in public affairs. Before attaining to the voting age he had become imbued with the doctrines of the Democratic party of that period, and he supported the policy and candidates of that organization until 1854, when, as a member of the Democratic State convention of that year, and chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, he felt compelled to dissent from expressing approval of the administration of President Pierce, who had forfeited, in his opinion, all claim to further allegiance by an approval of the bill to repeal the Missouri Compromise. From that time Mr. Williams ceased to vote with the Democratic party as long as the interests of slavery continued to shape political issues. In 1856 he took an active part in the presidential election, and entered the canvass as a volunteer speaker in support of the Fremont ticket, doing yeoman's service wherever called, but with no thought of being recognized for promotion at the end of the campaign. On returning home, however, from a week's absence just before the annual State election, he found his name had been put upon the Republican ticket for Kennebec senators by a county convention, which had met, acted and adjourned without previous public intimation of such a purpose. The result was an election of the ticket bearing his name; which afterward proved to be a call, not merely to a sphere of public duty in the State senate, but after six weeks of service as president of that body, it became his constitutional prerogative to enter upon the discharge of Executive functions, in place of Governor Hamlin, who vacated his office upon being elected a senator of the United States. These important duties Mr. Williams performed to the evident satisfaction of the people of the State for the remainder of that political year. The vantage-ground of this position might have justified an aspiration to continue in it by courting an election by the people; but the proffered influence of friends to compass that elevation was promptly and firmly repressed by him. Although a temperate man from his youth up, he well knew that so long as he did not regard "Prohibition" as the final word in the science of political as well as social ethics, he could not look for support from those who answered to no other rallying-cry, and whose active co-operation was generally regarded as essential to Republican success. At the close of the year 1857, therefore, Mr. Williams returned to the congenial pursuits of his profession.

When the fratricidal war between the States broke out, Mr. Williams at once gave his hearty support to all measures—State and National—to sustain the Union; and in the autumn of 1863, at the desire of his kinsman and neighbor, Governor Cony, he consented to accept a nomination for representative in the legislature of 1864, and he was chosen for that year, and afterward for the two following years. During these several periods of legislative service he was placed upon the committee of finance, being chairman of it in 1865 and 1866; and also served on one or another of the several committees on the judiciary, railroads, and the Hospital for the insane during the same periods.

He earnestly seconded the financial suggestions of Governor Cony in his messages to the legislature, and in the session of 1865 he reported from the finance committee and advocated the heroic measure of taxation by which the annual State assessment was raised that year to the startling amount (for Maine) of two millions and a half of dollars; believing that the burden, great as it was, could be more easily borne in that form at that time than by an increase of loans, already large, to be paid at a later day, with the risk of unfavorable changes in commercial values when their maturity should arrive.

He also heartily labored for the creation and establishment of a sinking fund to provide for the payment of the State debt, and drafted the bill for that purpose, which became a law January 28, 1865. The text of this law was afterward adopted by the legislature of 1868 when they came to deal with the subject of a loan for the "equalization of municipal war debts," and its wisdom as a measure of finance received the sanction of the people of Maine when they voted to amend their constitution so that the inchoate act of March 7, 1868, could take effect.

He regarded himself fortunate that it fell to his lot to share the felicitations extended to the legislature of that year when they voted to ratify the proposed amendment of the constitution of the United States, whereby slavery was abolished.

Mr. Williams was at a later period returned to the legislature, at the election in September, 1873, by those who voted an independent ticket for representatives; but the canvass was made during his absence on a journey, without consulting him, and his service at the session of 1874 was reluctantly entered upon. His inability to resist successfully the legislation of that year touching the government of the Insane Hospital, was a source of chagrin to him at the time, and subsequent events affecting the administration of that institution have only confirmed his regret. The original law for its government steered clear of the exigencies of contending parties in the State—which are inevitable under our republican system—and kept the superintendent and employees of the hospital safe from the caprices which often govern the bestowal of political patronage; and he looked upon its repeal and the substituted legislation respecting appointments not only as unwise, but mischievous, in its tendency to undermine public confidence in appointees—so essential to the attainment of the legitimate objects of any hospital for the insane.

He was one of the first board of directors of the Maine General Hospital, and continued to hold that trust for several years. He was also a trustee of the State Reform School, to which office he was appointed by Governor Crosby in 1853. Among the more private trusts committed to his hands was the agreeable duty of fostering the interests and objects of the Cony Female Academy, in Augusta, as one of its board of trustees; having been elected a member of the board in 1851, and serving as treasurer to the present time. The commodious and substantial academy, erected in 1880, and now transferred, by the action of the trustees, to the uses of a free high school for the city of Augusta, will stand, not only as a monument to the generous founder of the institution, but as evidence of Mr. Williams' personal devotion, in connection with his associate trustees, to the cause of good learning and the highest welfare of his native city. Mr. Williams was married September 26, 1842, to Apphia Putnam, daughter of the distinguished antiquarian and genealogist, Sylvester Judd, of Northampton, Mass., who was also the father of Rev. Sylvester Judd, formerly pastor of the Unitarian Church in Augusta, whose brilliant pastorate is well remembered, and whose published works in the field of polite literature still attest his genius and scholarly attainments.

Mr. Williams' only child, Arthur Lowell, was born August 3, 1844, and died December 15, 1846.

A GENEALOGICAL NOTE.

By JOSEPH H. WILLIAMS, 1890.

The genealogy of the subject of the foregoing sketch has been already accurately given, to some extent, by the historian of Augusta — Hon. James W. North (1870) — but he was not able to trace the lineage farther back than Richard Williams, who came to New England about the year 1636-7, and made a permanent settlement in Taunton, Mass., in 1637.

Unceasing efforts have been made by his descendants to ascertain not only his nativity, but the line of his ancestry as well: but they have been obliged to rest, for the most part, in certain old traditions which have survived the lapse of almost two centuries. The Rev. Samuel Hopkins Emery in his "Ministry of Taunton, Mass. (1853)," has given us the contents of "a MS. of considerable antiquity," which states that "Richard Williams was descended from a family of that name in Glamorganshire, Wales, and found a wife in Gloucestershire." It is true that Mr. James Savage, in his Genealogical Dictionary (1869), ventured to discredit the statement that our immigrant ancestor found a wife in Gloucestershire, but recent researches have confirmed its truth.

Another tradition, as given by Hon. Francis Baylies of Taunton, Mass., in his "Historical Memoir of the Colony of New Plymouth (1828)," still has its believers, although it has not yet been verified by recorded proof. The language of Mr. Baylies is, that "Richard Williams was born as early as 1599, and a tradition has always existed among his descendants that he was related by blood to Oliver Cromwell."

A tradition like this, in the ordinary course of human events, would have taken its rise during the lifetime of Deacon Richard, and probably within his immediate family circle; and surely every one of his descendants now living would instinctively, if not indignantly, repel a suggestion from any quarter that he would have asserted, or that any of his family would have countenanced for a moment a baseless claim to the distinction of the kinship in question. Certainly there is nothing in such consanguinity that should be regarded as preposterous or improbable; and ancient records, with modern facilities for access to them, may yet disclose a lineage which will show a common ancestor connecting our Richard with Oliver Cromwell.

That both Oliver Cromwell and Richard Williams "sprung from Glamorganshire" remains an unquestioned fact; and we know that Cromwell's blood was that of a "Williams," for he was a lineal descendant, in the male line, of Morgan Williams of Glamorganshire. Oliver's great grandfather, Sir Richard Williams, assumed the name "Cromwell," it is true, but not until, in mature years, he had distinguished himself in the public service (temp. Henry VIII), under the patronage of his uncle Thomas Cromwell (Vicar General, 1535), whom he proposed to honor by the adoption of his name. In fact Sir Richard ever afterward used to sign himself, "Richard Cromwell, alias Williams"; and his sons and grandsons, and Oliver himself in his youth (1620), used to sign in the same manner. In important grants from the crown to Sir Richard (29 and 31, Henry VIII), the grantee's name appears in both forms, "Cromwell alias Williams," and "Williams alias Cromwell."¹

The recent researches, herein referred to, have resulted in discovering the parentage and family of Richard Williams, and of his wife, Frances Dighton.

The first advance towards this result was the discovery by HENRY F. WATERS, M. A., of two wills in England, abstracts of which are given in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register, Vol. 37.

The first was that of JANE WILLIAMS, of Whetenhurst, county of Gloucester, spinster, dated May 31, 1650, and proved June 30, 1655. It mentions her brother Samuel Williams; her brother Richard Williams and her sister Elizabeth Williams, "that are in New England;" Benjamin Williams and Nathaniel Williams, "the two sons of my brother Samuel Williams;" and John Hall the younger, "my sister's eldest son," and Samuel, Daniel and Susanna, "the other three children of my brother-in-law John Hall."

The second will was that of BENJAMIN WILLIAMS, of Stoke, near Guldeford, Surrey county, schoolmaster, dated July 2, 1695, proved Sept. 22, 1698. It mentions his brother Nathaniel Williams; his cousins, Susanna Hall, John, Samuel and Daniel Hall, now or late of Whetenhurst, Gloucester county; * * * * "my cousins," Samuel, Thomas and Benjamin Williams, of New England; "my cousin Elizabeth Bird, of Dorchester, in New England;" the eldest child of "my cousin" [Nathaniel] Williams, of New England, deceased; the eldest child of "my cousin Joseph Williams, deceased," and also the eldest child of "my cousin" Hannah Parmater.

A comparison of these two wills shows that the maker of the second will was the Benjamin named in the first. The "cousins" in New England bore the same names as the children of Richard Williams, and even the married names of his two daughters, Elizabeth (giving her residence) and Hannah. Further he speaks of Nathaniel, Joseph and Hannah, as deceased. The two children of Richard, by the names of Nathaniel and Joseph, died in 1692, and Hannah died in 1693, while the will was dated in 1695, and the other children of Richard, viz.: Samuel, Thomas, Benjamin and Elizabeth Bird, were then living.

Soon after the publication of the abstracts of these wills, it was universally conceded that Jane, the maker of the first will, was the sister of Richard Williams, of Taunton, and the maker of the second will was his nephew, and that we had obtained thereby the names of the following members of her father's family, viz.: Samuel, Richard, Jane, Elizabeth (in New England), and Mrs. John Hall, of Whetenhurst.

Further, the bequest in the will of Benjamin, "to the poor of the parish of Whetenhurst," "any poor people of my father's kindred principally recommended," was held to indicate that the family must have been in Gloucester county more than one generation, and that, therefore, Richard must have been born there.

Upon the publication of these facts the writer of this Note undertook to prosecute the investigation by correspondence, and the results, quite gratifying, will now be given.

In the Consistory Court of the Bishop of Gloucester was found the will of SAMUEL WILLIAMS, dated Sept. 26, 1668, proved in 1669. He was apparently a clergyman, for he gave to his son Benjamin his "Book of Marters" and "Perkins Works" [undoubtedly the works of Rev. William Perkins, the learned Calvinist divine (1558-1602), published after his death, in three folio volumes], and to his son Nathaniel, his "Written Sermons." He also mentions his "brother" James Adams [his wife's brother], his brother Richard Williams, and his sister Elizabeth Williams, the Adamses again, and his cousins [nephews and nieces], the four Hall children.

Next was discovered the will of WILLIAM WILLIAMS, of Synwell, a hamlet in Wootton-under-Edge [about three miles from Berkeley, easterly on the same road]. It was dated Sept. 26, 1618, and proved in the same year. It names sons Samuel and Richard; daughters Ann or Anna, Elizabeth and Jane. These are the same names as in the other wills, except that it is here found that the name of Mrs. Hall was Ann.

The witnesses were William Martin, Robert Trotman and Francis Wright, the two former of whom were named as overseers. These are well-known names of families of high standing.

The executor was Richard Tyndall [or Tyndale] of North Nibley, a relative of William, the translator of the Bible, who suffered martyrdom in Flanders.

An examination of the register of the parish of "St. Mary the Virgin," in Wooton-under-Edge, in Gloucestershire, brought to light the baptisms of the following children of William Williams :

"An," daughter, Dec. 2, 1599.

Richard, son, Jan. 28, 1606.

Jane, daughter, March 19, 1608.

There is also the record of the burial of William Williams, Sept. 29, 1618. and of Elizabeth Williams, Nov. 19, 1630. It was at first supposed that this Elizabeth might have been the mother of Richard ; but as no wife is mentioned in the will of William, this is scarcely probable. Susanna Williams was buried Jan. 11, 1610, and she may have been the wife of William. It is hoped that further investigations, now being prosecuted, will lead to the discovery of the mother's name.

The records show that Samuel Williams married Alice Knight, a widow, in 1637; that their son Samuel was baptized in 1638, their daughter Hannah in 1640 (died in 1645), and their son Nathaniel in 1645; that the mother died in 1661, and the father in 1669. Samuel, Jr., died young, and the record of Benjamin's baptism has not yet been found.

But these more recent discoveries have not been confined to the family of Richard Williams. "The Gloucestershire wife," doubted by Savage, has been established. It was known that the wife of Richard was FRANCES DIGHTON, sister of KATHARINE, the wife of Gov. Thomas Dudley, but the discovery of their family had baffled the efforts of all investigators. Early in 1889 the record was discovered which shows that on "February 11, 1632, RICHARD WILLIAMS was married to FRANCES DEIGHTON, of Gloucester, in the Parish of Witcombe Magna," situated about five miles east of that city.

The will of John Deighton, dated Jan. 31, 1639. proved May 21, 1640, mentions his eldest son, John, his eldest daughter, Jane, his daughter Frances Williams, his daughter Katharine Haighburne (at that date wife or widow of Samuel Haighburne) and his daughter Damaris, who was made residuary legatee and executor. It is to be noted that these names have all been used among the descendants of Richard Williams to the present day.

Among the "Inscriptions in St. Nicholas church," Gloucester, Big-lands, is the following :

"Here lie interred the bodies of John Deighton, of this city, gent., and Jane, his wife, daughter to Edward Bassett, of Uley, by whom he had issue, three sons and four daughters. He spent all his time in the study of chirurgery, and attained to great knowledge therein. He died 16 May, 16[40], and she the 23 April, 1631."

The records of the same church show the christening of Frances and Katharine, daughters of John Dighton :

Frances, bap. March 1, 1611.

Katharine, bap. Jan. 16, 1614.

The Dudley genealogy has been published, in part at least, in magnificent style, but at the time nothing more was known concerning Katharine's parentage than that her father's name was Dighton.

The accounts of Katharine make her, when she married Gov. Dudley (April 14, 1644), the widow of Samuel Hackburne. The name in some records is Haighburne; in her father's will it is Hayburne. The pronunciation of Haighburne is not known. The name "Haigh," at the present time is variously pronounced—Hay, Hague, Hake, etc. The transformation of "Haighburne" to "Hackburne," therefore, is not surprising.

While the writer has been seeking to discover the parentage of RICHARD and FRANCES [DIGHTON] WILLIAMS, their descendants to the fifth generation have been diligently sought by one of their number,* and a compilation of more than twelve hundred names in the male and female lines, has already been made, and the author expects to be able to complete it at an early day. It is a source of satisfaction to the writer to have been able to procure for him important information relating to the history of the family before they came to this country.

Without intending to forestall the interest attaching to so valuable a work, the descent of the writer of this Note from Richard Williams, through Benjamin, his youngest son, is here given.

I. RICHARD WILLIAMS^t (the son of William) was born in Wooton-under-Edge, Gloucestershire, England; was baptized January 28, 1606 [not in 1599, according to the opinion entertained heretofore]. He died in Taunton, Mass., in 1693. He married Frances Dighton, daughter of John and Jane [Bassett] Dighton, born in Gloucester, England. She was baptized March 11, 1611. She died at Taunton,

* Hon. Josiah H. Drummond of Portland, Maine.

Mass., in 1706. The mother was a descendant of the ancient Berkeley family. The record of their marriage is:

"Richard Williams of the parishe of St. Johns, in Glouc^r, and Frances Deighton of the parishe of St. Nicholas, in Glouc^r aforesayd, were marryed the XIth day of February, at Witcombe Magna, by Mr. Stubbs, [t]eacher, 1632."

II. Children, born in Gloucester, England:

- 2 John², bap. March 27, 1634; died young.
- 3 Elizabeth², bap. February 7, 1635-6; died young.

(68) Daniel Moulton⁴, Captain (Jonathan⁴, Robert², William¹), b. in Hampton, N. H., 1731. His father died when he was four years old, and he was apprenticed to a man who treated him harshly. About 1745, at the age of fourteen, he ran away and went to the new settlements in Maine, first to Saco, and then to Scarborough, where he settled on the east side of Nonsuch river, near "Rocky Hill," opposite what is now known as the Daniel Carter place. He was a blacksmith, and became the owner of large tracts of land, holding most of what is now Scarborough Corner School District, and, it is said, about two miles of Nonsuch meadows. He had a large square house and several large barns. He gave each of his children a farm with large square house. In later years he paid a considerable sum in settlement for "his time" to the man to whom he had been apprenticed. He is mentioned in Southgate's History of Scarborough, as one of the prominent men in the town after its second settlement. He was an especial favorite of Charles Pine, the hunter and Indian fighter, whose grand daughter he married, and Pine attempted by will to entail a tract of land upon Daniel and his issue. He m. 1st, April 25, 1750, Grace, dau. of John Reynolds* and Grace Pine. Daniel and Grace, his wife, "owned the covenant" in 2d Parish church, Oct. 29,

NEW MARBLEHEAD, NOW WINDHAM, MAINE.

REV. G. M. BODGE, EAST BOSTON, MASS.

THE scene of the fight was on lot No. 21, of the first division of one-hundred-acre lots. To those not familiar with the method of drawing the lots, the locality will be better understood by a word of explanation.

No. 1 of this division was drawn upon the head of the home-lots, running back on the line of the "School-lot" to the Presumpscot river, and northwesterly on the main road a hundred rods to the cross road running to "Horsebeef Falls." The following lots up to nine, of varying width (according as the course of the river changed their length), were drawn, the ninth being bounded by Pleasant river on the northwest. The next eight lots were drawn on the opposite side of the main road, No. 17 being drawn upon the head of the home lots, which, it will be remembered, were ten rods wide and one mile long, with the main road running through at half a mile from the river.

At the easterly end of these home lots and half a mile from the main road was the second road, running parallel with the former as laid out, beginning at Falmouth line and running on the home lots and the back of the above-named eight hundred-acre lots to Pleasant river. In continuing this division the surveyors passed down to the Falmouth line, as it was then supposed to run, and drew No. 18 upon the back of the lower home lots, being 194 rods wide to make up for its triangular form, caused by the direction of the Falmouth line. Nos. 19 and 20 were 92 1-2 rods wide, so that No. 21 ran upon the back of home lots 23 to 32. It was drawn to the original right of James Skinner; owned by Ezra Brown at the time of his death, and now belongs to the estate of the late John F. Anderson, Esq. The place is now open pasture land; the brook has nearly disappeared, and only tradition has preserved the evidence of the exact locality, known to very few now living, but familiar fifty years ago to many of the old people who had visited the spot and stood by the very tree under which the Indian chief fell.

After the war was over and intercourse was resumed with the Indians, it was ascertained that this attacking party was a portion of the local tribe, who called themselves (as we learn from the ancient document given above) "Pesumscots," and whose chief (as we learn from the same document) called himself Polin. The Indians told the settlers that two other Indians besides Polin were killed in the fray. And there is a tradition that they also told them that they carried the chief many miles back into the woods, and uprooting a young tree beside a river, and bending it backward they hollowed a grave directly underneath, and then springing the sapling back to place, replanted its roots and left it to grow, as a safe burial place and fitting monument to the chief. The poet Whittier's beautiful poem, "The Funeral Tree of the Sokokis," was founded upon this old tradition. When some forty years ago excavations were made for building the lock upon Songo river, a human skeleton was unearthed directly under a large tree, and the circumstance revived the old tradition, and many supposed that the bones were those of the old chief "Poland," as our ancestors called him. But the skeleton was said to have been that of a very large man, while the tradition from those who knew Chief Polin, was that he was very small in stature for an Indian. In a subsequent chapter upon "Ancient Land-marks and Relics," further reference will be made to this fight with the Indians.

Ezra Brown, who was killed, moved into the town sometime before April, 1750, and settled upon home lot No. 59, with wife Mary and son William, and on April 3, 1750, had son Ezra born, and before his death Amos and Lydia; and through these children and their descendants the name has been made honorable in the succeeding generations. Widow Mary Brown, in 1759, married Eliezer Chase, and had another family, but removed in a few years to the new town of Buckfield.

Ephraim Winship, who was wounded in this fight, was born in Lexington, Mass., May 1, 1709, and there married Mehitabel Cutter, Aug. 28, 1735. They had six children between 1736 and 1747. He was a shoemaker by trade, and settled with the above family in New Marblehead, upon home lot No. 5, in 1750. His wife Mehitabel died April 18, 1753, aged 44 years. Mr. Winship's wounds were so severe that his recovery seems wonderful; for besides the bullet shot in the arm, another bullet destroyed an eye, and, as he possessed a "double crown," the Indians took two scalps from his head, leaving a narrow strip of scalp from the back of his head to the front. In this work they were interrupted by the guards, and one of the savages gave him a hasty, cruel blow with a tomahawk upon the head and left him for dead. He recovered however, and although badly hacked and shot, and having but one eye and less than one-fourth of his original scalp, he married again, Oct. 13, 1759, Mrs. Elizabeth (Roberts) Mathews, widow of Samuel. She had a family of four children by her first husband to join with his six; and then they together had four more, the last being born Dec., 1766, some six months after the father's death, which occurred June 4, 1766. His widow Elizabeth in 1768 married Amos Brown as her third husband, and by him had several children.

The above account is all that I have been able to glean from different sources concerning the fight with the Indians. Upon the death of Polin the Pesumscots seem to have broken up, and probably they passed to the eastward and became a part of some of those tribes which still kept up the fight for nearly two years. There is some evidence that they went to the northwest, and with a few scattered bands from other broken tribes, led out a precarious existence until the last few families dwindled away and disappeared. This was the last hostile visit of the enemy to our townspeople, although the form of guarding was kept up for a year or two afterwards.

The situation a year later is shown in the following petition, which is preserved in the Massachusetts archives, where it has lain unnoticed for a hundred and fifty years.

PETITION OF THE INHABITANTS OF NEW MARBLEHEAD.

To his Honour Spencer Phips Esq^r Lieutenant Governor & Commander in Chief: & To the Honourable Counsel & House of Representatives now sitting at Boston April 4, 1757.

The pation of the Inhabitants of a place called New Marblehead humbly sheweth that for this fourteen or fifteen years past we have been Confined to a garrison by reson of the Worr: & are thereby brought into such difaculties that we can by no means subsist aney longer: without the help of the Government but must unavoidably quit the settlement, go into the war and leve our wives & Children to the Charity of the Province for we have for this several years past, the greatest part of us raised but little or no Corn. many fields of Several acors all destroyed by y^e wild varmonds that there was not a single — in the whole feld: & if there was aney left standing in aney the early frost has cut it short So that it would not fat a pig & therefor oblied to by our bread corn where we could git it on credit & now we are calld on for pay and we have nothing to pay and our Creditors are afraid to give us aney further Credit not noing but we may be destroyed by the Enemy & they loose what we have had allready & this February was twelve months past we had a young man taken by the Indians and the next May following they gave us another visit & erected there wigwams but about a mile from our fields and there waited for an opportunity to do us a mischief which they effected by waylaying the Rhoad where one of our people was going to his field fired on him and kild him and shot another man that was with him shot out one of his eyes and through his arm & scalpt him who is yet alive but won of our people that was with them fired on the Indians and put them into such a surprise that they drawd of in such a hurry as to leve all ther blankits amission caps knives bever & every thing they brought with them which we recovered from them which makes us think we have all the reson emagenable to expect them again this Sprig in order to recover ther los & the garrison which the Province built for us in the first of the wor is so very much out of repara that there is nobody dars to ventor there lives in it aney longer without it is repaired: & having no minister for this foure years past: & in no Surcomstances to Settle another which rendors our case so very discouraging that we must unavoidably move of if we can have no helpe which we should be very loath to due if we might be alowd pay and Subsistence to gard ourselves without aney other gards as has bin on our backs for two years past for we find by Experance that a gard or scout so far back from us dus not answer to prevent the enemys way laying our feilds for we find that [it] is there way to lay round our fields & kill or take us as we go about our work: So humbly beg the Honourable Court to take our destrest Sircumstances under your wise Concidderation & due for us as in your wise Concidderation you may think best & your Patisioners shall ever pray

Elijah Webb	Timothy Cloutman	Thomas Chute
James Webb	Robert Hill	William Meayberry
Thomas Manchister	Stephen Manchister	Joseph Starling
Gershom Winshipp	Curtis Chute	Samuel Webb
William Elder	Samuel Mathes	Thomas Meayberry
William Bolton	Micah Walker	John Bodge
Hugh Crague	Zerubabel Hunewel	Richard Mayberry
Nathaniel Evans	Seth Webb	William Maxfield
Robert Mugford	John Farrow jr.	John Manchester

The muster-roll given below shows the way in which the military was organized at New Marblehead during these years. It is given here in somewhat different form from what it appears in the ancient paper preserved in the Archives, as it would be difficult to give the form of the old Provincial pay roll upon any less than a quarto page.

A Muster Roll of ten Garrison Soldiers allowed at New Marblehead in his Majesty's Service under the Command of Thomas Chute, Sergeant, Nov. 2d, 1757.

Divided among ye inhabitants

Thomas Chute, Sergeant.
John Bodge	Samuel Webb
Curtis Chute	Ephraim Winship
John Meaberry	John Manchester
Samuel Matthews	Joseph Starling
William Maxfield

The above were the ten with whom the Province kept account, but there were twenty-eight in all who drew equal shares of the whole sum applied by the Province in guarding at New Marblehead.

The other townsmen who shared with these ten were:

Thomas Meaberry	William Elder	Hugh Craigue
John Farrow	Nathaniel Evans	Amos Brown
Micah Walker	Eleazer Chase	Robert Muckford
Richard Meaberry	William Meaberry	John Stevens
Stephen Manchester	Abraham Anderson	William Bolton
Zerubbabel Honeywell	Caleb Graffam	Robert Hill

The term of service here reckoned, extended from April 8 to October 31, 1757, a period of twenty-nine weeks and four days, as they allowed it.

Thomas Chute as sergeant, and continually employed in keeping accounts and detailing the daily guards, was allowed £11, 1 s., 10 d. While every other able-bodied man in the settlement was held to guard duty, and allowed his proportional part of the Province money. This amounted to £2, 19s., 1 1-4d. Portions of Mr. Chute's old "Guarding Accounts" are still preserved in a manuscript book in possession of the Maine Historical Society.

FLITNER FAMILY,

 COMPILED BY MRS. S. E. FLITNER, BOSTON, MASS.

Zacharias Flitner * was a native of Germany. His name was originally Fliedner,^a as shown by his diploma.

(Translation of Diploma.)

KNOW ALL MEN that we the Commissioners of the Medical College of this place, here assembled in committee, had brought before us by the much honored and experienced Sir John Henry Patzen (examined and qualified physician and surgeon of Tann) Zacharias Nicolous Fliedner, who studied with him for three years, and during that time was intelligent, industrious, honest and upright; fulfilling the requirements imposed by us, for his future promotion. For this reason all persons and more especially our examined and incorporated profession, when wishing a consultation can ask service of the above named Zacharias Nicolous Fliedner, which we under the same circumstance will reciprocate. We pray that without this certificate, and the birth letter that none will be taken.

* Fac simile of his autograph taken from a receipt dated July 18, 1783.

(a) We have been unable to establish a family connection with those bearing the name in Germany. A parson, G. Flidner, is now pastor of a church at Kaisersworth, a little town on the Rhine. His grandfather, born 1764, in Oppenheim, was a minister in Eppstein, a small village on the frontier of Hesse and Nassau. His great-grandfather was also a preacher of the Gospel at Oppenheim. The original home of this family was in Hessen, near Hanau.

Theodore Flidner,† a philanthropist and restorer of the office of deaconess to the Protestant church of Germany, was born Jan. 21, 1800, at Eppstein, where his father was parish clergyman. He studied at the universities of Giessen and Gottingen, and at the theological seminary of Herborn. In 1855 received the degree of doctor of theology at the university at Bonn. He preached at Kaisersworth, where in 1833 he opened a refuge for discharged female convicts, and in 1836 began the first deaconess home and hospital. He died Oct. 4, 1864, having traveled over a large part of Europe, America, and the East, leaving behind him over 100 stations, attended by 430 deaconesses.

Surgeon and present chief Elder.

That he changed it soon after coming to this country is inferred from the following record of his marriage:—"Zacheus Flitner to Lucy Colburn^c Nov. 5, 1765," by James Howard Esq., magistrate of Augusta, Me. At the conclusion of his medical studies at Gotha, April 29, 1743, tradition says he traveled over parts of Europe before joining the Prussian army, to which he was attached as surgeon several years previous to coming to America. He arrived in Boston about 1764. Through the influence of Judge North he was induced to go to the Kennebec region, where he located at Gardinerston, on the west side of the river, being that part of the plantation now Gardiner.

He was the first settled physician in that section of Maine. He bought five acres of land of Dr. Sylvester Gardiner, Sept. 20, 1765,* "on condition that he should build a house and dwell on the land seven years." It was bounded "at Kennebec River at East end of

(c) Lucy Colburn was the daughter of Jeremiah^d and Sarah Colburn. He was a lineal descendant in the fourth generation from "Edward Colburne who came in the 'Defense' from London July 6, 1635, aged 17," and settled first in Ipswich and later in Dracut, Mass., where he died Feb. 17, 1700 (?) Ezra² Colburn, son of Edward, married Hannah, daughter of Samuel Varnum of Dracut. Ezra² Colburn had Ezra,³ who married Lucy, daughter of Philip Nelson of Rowley, Mass., who was graduated from Harvard College 1654. They were the parents of the above Jeremiah^d who came from Dunstable, Mass., and settled on the east bank of the Kennebec, now Pittston. He bought 800 acres of land July 5, 1763, of Samuel Fowle of Woburn and Benjamin Jaquith of Wilmington, Mass., belonging to lot No. 15 (Kennebec Purchase), 80 poles on the river and 5 miles long. He sold, May 6, 1765, to his son Rueben⁵ Colburn, 107 acres, being a part of the above 800. On this site Reuben Colburn built the homestead now standing, where he lived and reared a large family. He died Sept. 16, 1818. His wife Elizabeth (Lewis) died Aug. 5, 1821.

South line of No. 17; (Kennebec Purchase) from thence running W. S. W. 67 poles to a road; thence South 17 degrees East on said road 12 poles; thence E. N. E. to Kennebec River.* His house was about where William Bradstreet's dwelling now stands.

He moved his family to Lake Maranocook, where they lived during the time of the Revolution, Dr. Flitner serving as surgeon in that war several years.

In 1779 was surgeon in Col. McCobb's regiment of militia in Gen. Lovell's Brigade.†

He built a house on the east side of Nahumkeag Pond, where he passed his remaining years. The land was bounded "South line of Seth Soper's at a Stone and at East end of Reuben Colburn's land where he dwells, running E. S. E. 166 poles; thence S. S. W. 80 poles, then to run W. N. W. on the Northerly line of the late Parson Weld's land to the Pond; from thence across said Pond to the aforesaid Reuben Colburn's land South line; from thence across to first mentioned Stone,‡ — 166 poles long and 80 poles wide." He sold the above land to his son Joseph, Oct. 8, 1799. Dr. Flitner died about 1804. He was nearly blind during the latter part of his life. His wife lived to be aged, but died before he did. They were interred in the old churchyard near Major Colburn's, where nearly all of Pittston's early settlers were laid to rest. Children:

(3) Francis² Flitner (*Zacharias*¹), born Aug. 1, 1774; married, Dec. 2, 1804, Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel and Hannah (Agry) Oakman.* She was born in Pittston, and died there Oct. 18, 1850, aged 69 years. She was a lineal descendant in the fifth generation from Samuel¹ Oakman of Scarborough, who settled there as early as 1657, through Tobias² of Scarborough and Marshfield, Edward³ of Marshfield and Samuel⁴ of Marshfield and Pittston. In the female line she descended from Richard Warren, Thomas Rogers and Edward Doty, who came in the Mayflower 1620. Francis Flitner bought his place, comprising 143 acres, extending to Nahumkeag Pond, of Benjamin Shaw, May 13, 1803.† This land was next north of Thomas Agry's, being a part of No. 15 (Kennebec Purchase), formerly owned by Rev. Habijah Weld of Attleborough, Mass. On the site near the river he built his home, where he passed his life after marriage, and reared a large family. The homestead was sold July, 1884, by Flitner heirs, to the Independent Ice Company of Washington, D. C. The house was renovated, a cupola and piazza added, and is now occupied by Chas. W. Church. Edward Lawrence owned land adjoining north, now in possession of his heirs. He was in partnership in the mill business with Francis Flitner, they owning a sawmill and gristmill at Agry's Point. Before the war of 1812 he built vessels on the bank of the river near his home, but the embargo act proved disastrous to his shipping interests, and like many others he lost nearly all his Elisha³ and Hannah (Wheelwright) Plaisted, son of John² Plaisted, b. 1659, son of Roger¹, killed by Indians Oct. 16, 1675, aged 48 years.

In Penhallow's "Indian Wars," we find an interesting account of the wedding of Elisha³ Plaisted, as follows:— "After Sept. 1, 1712, the last action that happened of any moment (this war) was at Mr. Plaisted's marriage unto Capt. Wheelwright's daughter of Wells, where happened a great concourse of people; who as they were preparing to mount in order to return, found two of their horses missing. Mr. Downing, Isaac Cole and others went out to seek them, but before they had gone many rods the two former were killed (by Indians) and the others taken. The noise of the guns soon alarmed the guests and Capt. Lane, Capt. Robinson and Capt. Heard, with several others, mounted their horses, ordering twelve soldiers to run over the field,—being the nearest way,

THE SWETT FAMILY, OF YORK.

COMMUNICATED BY WM. M. SARGENT, A. M.

NOTES, QUERIES, ETC.

NEWMEADOWS RIVER CANAL.—By an act of the General Court passed in June, 1791, nine persons were incorporated and authorized to open this canal. John Peterson, Esq., is chosen as principal agent in conducting the business. The length of the canal is six hundred rods. It is sunk about three feet below high water mark, and is about seven feet wide. It is proposed to widen it to about eighteen feet in the whole, and that it should be sunk two feet deeper. This will be a water communication with the Kennebec and Androscoggin rivers. — Eastern Herald, Oct. 22, 1792.

SIX LIVING GENERATIONS.—Dr. R. B. Root, of Georgetown, Mass., writes as follows to the Boston Medical and Surgical Journal: — "Last May I attended Mrs. Newall Rogers of Byfield, with her first child. I was then informed, and I have since taken the pains to verify the statement then made, that this baby is the sixth living generation, with ages as follows: — great-great-great-grandmother, 95 years; great-great-grandmother, 74 years; great-grandfather, 59 years, 8 mos.; grandfather, 39 years, 4 mos.; mother, 16 years, 2 months; child, 11 months. — Popular Science News, August, 1888.

BAXTER. I am preparing a genealogy of the Baxter family, and would like to correspond with any one interested in it, or in the name of Taylor and Cone.

RUPERT H. BAXTER,
Bowdoin College, Brunswick, Me.

KING. In looking over the Recorder, under the history of the King family, I find four children assigned to Richard King and Hannah Larrabee, his wife. They had eight in all, in the following order as to age: Cyrus, Mary, William, Eliza, Joseph L., Robert, Richard, Fidelia and Miranda. This is vouched for by Mrs. Mary Larrabee Whitney, still living at the age of eighty-nine, at Burnham, Me., who was personally acquainted with all these children.

I. S. BANGS.

DRAKE, THOMAS.—I find mention of Thomas Drake in Mass. Colonial Record and York Deeds, as disposing of land which he owned in Casco Bay. When did he buy this land, where did he come from, where he go to, and whom his parents and children?

H. B. DRAKE,
Box 112. Auburndale, Mass.

PAGE. I would like information of the ancestry of Hannah Page, who was born about 1743 or '44, and married Col. James Scammon. Also information about the Hodge and Cook families of Wiscasset or vicinity in the last century.

BENJ. N. GOODALE, Saco, Me.

PORTLAND, Oct. 8, 1813.

Dear Sir: — By your request I have made inquiry respecting Capt. Blyth, late commander of the Boxer, and have received the following information from the Lieut., viz.: that Capt. Blyth was born in Portsmouth, G. B., was 5 feet 7 inches high, dark complexion, his nose not aquiline, aged 29 years; and was a son of a Mr. Blyth, master attendant of Sheerness Dock Yard.

Your friend and obt. servant,

ISAAC ILSLEY.
HON. ORCHARD COOK.

COOK.—I am very desirous of information concerning the parentage of the above Orchard Cook, b. March 24, 1763, and d. Aug. 12, 1819; he m. about the age of 20, Mary, dau. of Henry Hodge, Esq., of Wiscasset and Newcastle, Me. He was a member of Congress, 1807-10, from Maine, and he had brothers Francis and Jonathan.

BENJ. N. GOODALE, Saco, Me.

I wish information in a general way concerning those families who emigrated from Eastern Connecticut and Rhode Island in 1760. Also of Stephen Harrington, b. June 13, 1748, whose mother's name was Elizabeth, b. 1714, or possibly 1724; had a sister Sarah, who m. Col. Jonathan Sherman, in 1768; sister Mary, m. Amos Sheffield, in 1761 (he was b. 1733, in Newport, R. I.); another sister, Zerviah, m. Jeremiah Northup, in Rhode Island. All these were among the early settlers of Nova Scotia. I also want information of the Martin family; five brothers went from Rhode Island, viz.: Perez, Chandler, Peter, Brotherton, and one other, name unknown; all went to Nova Scotia.

DR. W. P. BRECHIN,
16 Temple Street, Boston, Mass.

PLUMB.—John, was one of the original settlers in Withersfield, 1635. Where did he come from to America; where land, and who was his wife, and what of his children? He died at Branford, Conn., 1648.

BLACKMAN.—John, m. Mary Pond, their first child b. in Dorchester, Mass., Oct. 5, 1656; I think his father came to America before John's birth, but do not know; would like any information concerning this family in early times.

H. B. PLUMB,
Peely, Luzerne Co., Penn.

BRADBURY MEMORIAL.—Fifty-five pages of this work are devoted to an account of the family in England, in which it is traced from Robert Bradbury of Ollersett in Derbyshire early in the fifteenth century, to Thomas who came to New England prior to 1634. This Thomas was the eighth in descent from the above-named Robert, and the Bradbury Memorial includes nine generations from Thomas, so that persons bearing the Bradbury name, and mentioned in this volume, are able to trace their descent through sixteen generations. The Memorial includes an account of nearly two thousand persons who have borne the name of Bradbury, and while it is far from complete, yet all who receive this circular are mentioned in the volume. It is printed on heavy calendered paper of the best quality, and contains 320 large octavo pages. It has brief biographical sketches of many of the name who have more or less distinguished themselves, and is illustrated by the Bradbury Coat of Arms, three views of Wicken Bonant, England, from whence Thomas Bradbury came, including the house in which he was born, and the church in which he was baptized, and portraits of Hon. James W. Bradbury of Augusta, Hon. Bion Bradbury late of Portland, the late John Merrill Bradbury of Ipswich, Mass., and several others. Only three hundred copies of the book are printed, and persons will be supplied in the order of their application until all are disposed of. It is bound in extra cloth, gilt edges, and sent postage prepaid for five dollars.

Address, DR. W. B. LAPHAM,
14 Elm Street, Augusta, Me.

WHAT BEFELL STEPHEN WILLIAMS IN HIS CAPTIVITY.—This account of Stephen Williams' captivity is not a diary of events recorded day by day, but bears evidence of having been written by the captive boy after his return, and before 1709. The original manuscript was given to the Pocumtuck Valley Memorial Association, who published it; edited by George Sheldon. Stephen was the son of Rev. John Williams, and was taken prisoner Feb. 29, 1703-4. He was born at Deerfield, Conn., May 14, 1693; graduated at Harvard. 1713; settled minister of Longmeadow, 1716; was chaplain under Sir Wm. Pepperrell in the Louisburg expedition in 1746, and the Canada land campaign of 1755, under Sir Wm. Johnson, and 1756, under Gen. Winslow. He died at Longmeadow, June 10, 1782, aged 89. George Sheldon, Deerfield, Ct.

THE LAMB PRIZE ESSAY. Practical Sanitary and Economic Cooking, adapted to persons of moderate means, by Mrs. Mary Hinman Abel. This little book is considered by good judges to be of great practical use in many families in this country, if it can be placed there. This is purely an effort to better the condition of the home, and to make happier the family circle. The humble citizen of our country, who made possible this essay through his generosity, receives no financial return for his constant expenditure in its distribution. The nominal price placed upon it pays only the clerical labor, postage, etc. It can be had at the bookstores.

Other Lamb Prize Essays: HEALTHY HOMES AND FOODS FOR WORKING CLASSES. SANITARY CONDITIONS OF SCHOOLHOUSES. DISINFECTION AGAINST DISEASES. PREVENTABLE CAUSES OF DISEASE, ETC. Address Dr. Irving A. Watson, Concord, N. H.

THE HISTORICAL RECORD. A quarterly publication, devoted principally to the early history of Wyoming Valley and the contiguous territory, with Notes and Queries. This periodical has completed its third volume, and is a store of useful and interesting matter pertaining to the history, biographical and genealogical, of the country round about. It has gathered everything old and new which has come to hand in its line worth notice, and put it in book form, well indexed, ready for binding. The historical student cannot afford to overlook this work in his researches for matters of this kind in this vicinity. F. C. Johnson, Editor, Wilkes Barre, Pa.

BIRTHDAY OF THE STATE OF CONNECTICUT. Celebration of the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary by the Connecticut Historical Society, Jan. 24, 1889. This is a book of ninety-eight pages, containing order of exercises, speeches, addresses and poems by prominent persons, and interesting to all students of local history in the State. Hon. J. Hammond Trumbull, President of the Society; Charles J. Hoadly, M. A., Secretary.

HISTORY OF THE LOWER KENNEBEC. By P. M. Reed, Bath, Me., A pamphlet of fifty or more pages, describing the river, early explorers and settlers of the country in its vicinity. Mentions Ancient Sagadahoc, Waymouth's Voyage, Interviewing the Natives, Captives in England, Formation of Colonizing Company, Pop-ham Expedition, Work and Workers on the Settlement, Its Abandonment, Character of Its Buildings and of the Colonists, Inaugurating Ship-building in America, etc., etc. The work is intended to be continued in a series of pamphlets to be eventually united in one volume.

THE NEW BRUNSWICK HISTORICAL SOCIETY. On the 9th of September, 1874, J. W. Lawrence, G. Murdock, W. R. M. Burtis, R. W. Crookshank, T. W. Lee, W. P. Dole, A. A. Stockton, G. W. Hay, W. H. Dimock, and James Hannay, met in the directors' room of the Mechanics' Institute, for the purpose of taking into consideration the advisability of forming an Historical Society. Mr. Lawrence, who for many years had been collecting material bearing on the early history and settlement of the province, was at a subsequent meeting, Nov. 25, made president of the Society then duly organized, with A. A. Stockton, vice-president, and W. P. Dole, Sec. The Society is on a sound basis, and progressing finely. It published in 1887, a souvenir on the occasion of the centennial celebration of the province, showing the collections of the Society, its members, etc., with addresses, poems, portraits and various other matters of historical interest in the province. Jonas Howe, Cor. Sec.

SOCIETY OF SONS OF THE REVOLUTION. Incorporated under the laws of the State of New York, May 3, 1884. Whereas it has become evident from the decline of proper celebration of such national holidays as the Fourth of July, Washington's birthday, and the like, that popular interest in the events and men of the war of the revolution appears to be falling off; therefore this institution has been formed in the United States to perpetuate the memory of the men who by their acts and council achieved our independence, to promote the proper celebration of the anniversaries which commemorate this event, to collect and preserve all records and documents which can be secured pertaining to that war, to inspire our descendants with the patriotic spirit of their forefathers, and to inculcate, in the community in general, sentiments of national respect for the principles for which the patriots of the revolution contended, this preamble is published in full, with constitution, by-laws, list of officers, members, etc. Fred'k S. Tallmadge, Pres.; James M. Montgomery, Sec., 111 Wall Street, New York.

INTERNATIONAL GENEALOGICAL CLUB.

For mutual aid to those interested in genealogy. No expense to join the club; simply send your address to S. M. WATSON, Public Library, Portland, Me., with the names on which you wish, and can impart information, when they will be added to the list and published in the next number of the Maine Historical and Genealogical Recorder, Portland, Me. All members expect to answer an queries addressed to them on the names they advertise, when they can do so conveniently.

SOUTHWESTERN TEXAS, THE ITALY OF AMERICA.

San Antonio, the Invalid's Paradise.

LAKE VIEW,

The Most Desirable Suburb in San Antonio for a Home.

LOCATION AND SCENERY.—Lake View is situated two miles west from the center of, and at an elevation of about one hundred feet above, the city of San Antonio. All the principal streets running west lead directly to the property. Its commanding elevation furnishes scenic advantages unsurpassed in Southwest Texas.

HEALTHFULNESS.—Probably there is no part of America that offers more attractions to persons suffering from throat or pulmonary troubles, including asthma, also kidney and rheumatic affections, than Southwest Texas, and of Southwest Texas there is no spot more healthy than San Antonio and its suburbs; The writer speaks, not only from personal experience, but from the standpoint of a physician who has given this matter a great deal of careful study, and who knows his statements are accurate.

Lake View offers great inducements at the present time as a winter resort, for the following reasons: The suburb is for strictly first-class residence property; the elevation is high and commanding; the atmosphere is free from all impurities, is not malarious, and is rich in ozone; the temperature is delightful; in fact, nature and art have combined to make Lake View a most charming suburban home.

AS AN INVESTMENT it offers special advantages; the prices of the property are very low, with the prospect of an early and rapid rise. The New England Land Company offers this property in single house lots, blocks, or acreage property.

A cordial invitation is extended to all persons who visit San Antonio to call upon the General Manager at the office of the Company, where any information pertaining to this part of our country will be cheerfully furnished. For further particulars, address,

William P. Watson, No. 9 East Houston Street, San Antonio, Texas.

PORTLAND, TEXAS,

Is the new town situated upon the cliffs which rise to a height of from thirty to forty feet above the water on the north shore of the bay of Corpus Christi. The future of Portland is assured for the following reasons: The San Antonio & Aransas Pass road now runs directly through the land, and a railroad station is established at Portland. It is so situated that all the future railroads from Central and Southern Texas or Mexico, to reach the Aransas Pass Harbor, will run through the property.

It is in near proximity to both Aransas Pass Harbor and the New Ship Canal which is now being built through Mustang Island by Col. E. H. Ropes of Corpus Christi. Aransas Pass Harbor will soon become one of the finest upon our coast, and as soon as the ship canal and Aransas Harbor is finished, Corpus Christi Bay will become the scene of great activity. The most rapid growth will follow which has ever been known in our country. Portland is famous for its delicious oysters and other sea foods. It is famous for its health. Its death rate is less than that of the most famous health resorts in the world. This is due to its situation on a noble bluff facing the salt water, swept by the salt sea breezes fresh from the Gulf of Mexico. The breezes make it cooler in summer than any locality in Texas. These breezes also make it warmer in winter than any locality in Texas. The lowest thermometer, 1888-1889, was only 40°. It had only one freezing spell in the winter of 1889 and 1890. Farms here will grow anything: tobacco, sugar, cotton, figs, grapes. A large vineyard in the neighborhood is valued at $1,000 an acre. They grow peaches. Garden truck is shipped from these lands every month in the year. The rich, dark soil needs no fertilizing. Rain-fall right here is heavier than in the Middle or New England States.

A party of New England gentlemen have purchased twelve hundred and eighty acres of land in Portland, which has one mile frontage upon the bluff, and extends back from the shore two miles. These gentlemen are about forming a syndicate in New England, and propose to offer the land at an extremely low figure, and as soon as the syndicate is formed a company will be incorporated. This land has doubled in value since it was purchased, and within three months will be again worth double its present value. This is one of the choicest investments which has ever been offered to the people of New England.

CYRUS WOODMAN.*

GOOD man has gone from among us; we cannot see him more, hear his kindly voice, nor grasp his genial hand; yet Cyrus Woodman will ever live in the memory of those who knew him best. Many a cheering word, many a timely act is deeply engraved on sorrowing hearts that never can forget their benefactor. He graduated at Bowdoin College in 1836, entered Harvard Law School in October, 1838, was admitted to the bar in Boston in July, 1839, and left soon after for Illinois as an agent for the Boston and Western Land Company.

Mr. Woodman was one of the pioneers of the West, going there in early life; no one ever worked harder than he, spending days together in the wilderness with only his compass for a guide.

He remained with this company till 1843, when it dissolved and he entered into partnership with Hon. C. C. Washburn of Mineral Point, Wisconsin, who was afterward a representative to congress from that state, a major-general in the late civil war, and later, Governor of Wisconsin. This partnership continued happily till dissolved by mutual consent in 1855.

*This paper was read by S. M. Watson before the Maine Genealogical Society of which Mr. Woodman was an honorary member.

Mr. Woodman inherited the peculiar traits of his family, appearing sometimes stern and blunt to those who did not know him, while beneath the exterior beat a kind and tender heart. Although much of his life was spent away from his native town and childhood home and friends, yet none were ever forgotten or shunned for foolish pride; all were alike dear and sacred to him. His kindred and townsmen were especially remembered, but he found friends everywhere.

He entertained a love and goodwill toward all whom he knew, and perhaps it was this spirit which prompted him to devote much time and money in preparing and publishing the genealogy of the name he bore, and histories of men and places he admired, that they might not be forever lost in obscurity. He was a member of several societies for the collection and preservation of historical and genealogical matters interesting the general public, and offered assistance at various times to procure the records of any towns in this state which could be obtained and copied, and place them where they would be securely preserved and readily accessible to people desiring such information as they might furnish.

To express the character and peculiarities of our brother, I cannot do better than quote the communication from one of his college classmates, the Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, to the Bowdoin Orient, soon after his death.

One of the alumni of Bowdoin College has passed away whom his brother-alumni and all friends of the college will sorely miss. Cyrus Woodman of Buxton, of the class of '36, was a student and man whom no one would forget after even the most casual acquaintance. There were frankness, goodness, simplicity, perfect independence, straightforwardness, and cordial friendliness, which made you remember him as one you would like to meet again.

For the study of law, to which he first gave himself, he seemed naturally fitted, not to be a "Philadelphia lawyer," but one who would easily discern the right and boldly and clearly maintain it without resort to any questionable measures.

The circumstances and interests of life rather led him to the management of land and railroad enterprises, in which he had eminent success. His business habits were exact, his judgment excellent. There were no loose ends, no ragged edges, no dirty corners in his affairs. Any one could see his character in his letters.

The handwriting was bold, clear, uniform, and as easy to read as the best printed page. What he had to say was said in fitting words, tersely, compactly, with no obscurity or possibility of it. Having said just what he wanted to say, his note, letter, or argument closed with no labored peroration.

He was a man to be trusted with your interests fully. You would be sure to be kept informed of the exact state of things without gloss or exaggeration. But there was another side to Mr. Woodman's character more difficult of exact delineation, if not of comprehension. He was, like a great many others, a kind-hearted, generous man. But he had his own peculiar way of doing a favor. He had a singular insight into the right time and best way, which would sometimes suggest the idea that spirits unseen had been mediums of communication. I will give an illustration, although it is personal. He once sent me a check, giving as a reason an old favor which I had done him and which he said had not been suitably recognized by him. The reason was entirely out of place, for it had been covered deep by greater favors. But the check fell into the exact place where it was wanted and filled it. The memory of it will last with others after I have passed away. There was no possibility of his knowing anything of the existing exigency. You might say it was all chance, and if only one such happy guess had occurred, you would be justified in saying so. But I could give other cases quite as singular. Such things happen only with those who watch for occasions and who have a faculty of observation and judgment, so that it becomes a sort of natural instinct to do the right thing at the right time. I was not of his class, nor of his college society. I was orthodox, he unitarian, but we always met cordially as friends, whether because we were alike or unlike I do not know and do not care. None of my Bowdoin friends have done me such repeated favors as he. I shall always keep upon my desk a memento inscribed,

CYRUS WOODMAN
TO CYRUS HAMLIN.

Our late brother was descended from Edward Woodman and his wife Joanna, who came from England, and probably from the town of Corsham, a village in Wiltshire about eleven miles from Christian Malford in 1635, and settled in Newbury, Massachusetts. Of the ninety-one grantees who settled Newbury, fifteen were entitled to the appellation of Mr., and one of these was Edward Woodman.

He was a man of influence, decision and energy; a deputy to the General Court in 1636-7-9 and '43; one of three commissioners to end small causes in Newbury in 1638-41-5 and 6; one of the first selectmen of Newbury, having been elected in 1636, and his name heads the list as we find it. Therefore for many years he was one of the leading men in town.

He and his wife Joanna were living in February, 1688; she was then 74. He died before 1694, his age not known to the writer.

Edward and Joanna had seven children, one of whom was Joshua², and as his gravestone tells us, "was the first man child born in Newbury." He married Elizabeth, daughter of Capt. John Stevens, one of the first settlers of Andover. Joshua had ten children, one of whom was Benjamin³, born 1683; married in 1711, Elizabeth, daughter of William Longfellow and wife Anne Sewall, a sister of Judge Samuel Sewall. William Longfellow was born in Hampshire, England, and was the only one of that name who came to America. He was a man of talent and education, but was not so much of a Puritan as some others, says the biographer.

Benjamin Woodman had nine children, one of whom was Joseph⁴, born in 1715, married in 1739, Catharine, daughter of Isaac and Mary (Smith) of Reading. Joseph Woodman removed to Narraganset No. 1 (now Buxton, Me.) about 1740, was there and at Biddeford until 1750, when he became a permanent settler in Buxton, where he erected and owned a mill and managed a lumber business for many years, and was one of the most enterprising and leading business men of the town.

He was more than once married, and had nine children, one of whom was Joseph⁵, born in Biddeford about 1749, married Abigail, daughter of Michael and Elizabeth (Dyer) Woodsum of Buxton, 1773.

Michael Woodsum was probably son of Joseph of Berwick, as his marriage record states he was of that town. His wife Elizabeth Dyer was of Biddeford, where she was baptized in 1755. Joseph Woodman was an enterprising, wide-awake business man, associated with most of the prominent business of Buxton during his manhood, employing and directing most of his life many men, always charitable, indulgent and kind, had few enemies and many friends. He had twelve children, one of whom was Joseph⁶, born 1783, married first, Susanna, daughter of Rev. Paul Coffin of Buxton, 1813. She died, 1833. He married second, Dorcas, daughter of Dr. Royal Brewster of Buxton, 1837.

We find him a student in Exeter Academy in 1802-3. He studied law with Hon. Cyrus King and Joseph Bartlett of Saco, and Hon. John Holmes of Alfred, was admitted to the bar, 1809. He settled in Buxton, where all his sons were born. In 1840 he went to Illinois to visit a son and spent the remainder of his life at the West. He was a man of clear discriminating intellect, cared not for public office, though at one time a member of the house of representatives of Massachusetts while Maine was a part of that state. He held the respect and esteem of all who knew him. He had five children of whom the eldest was CYRUS, the subject of this paper, born June 2, 1814, being therefore a grandson of Rev. Paul Coffin.

Mr. Woodman married in 1842 at Tremont, Illinois, Charlotte, daughter of Dea. Ephraim Flint of Baldwin, Me. In the summer of 1856 he went to Europe with his family, and returned to the West in 1859. He was nominated and elected a member of the lower House in the Wisconsin legislature in 1861, but resigned before taking his seat on account of business engagements out of the state. He moved to Cambridge, Mass., in 1863, where he remained till his death, March 30, 1889.

At his decease his remains were brought for interment with those of his ancestors at Buxton. The church where the funeral services were held was thronged with people of his native town, who came to look for the last time on one they respected and loved.

He had six children: Mary, Frank, Frank, 2d, Walter, Walter, 2d, and Edward. His wife, two sons and the daughter survive him. The sons, Walter a physician, and Edward a lawyer, are residents of Portland, Maine.

(10) Joseph³ Flitner (Joseph,² Zacharias,¹) born Apr. 14, 1808; married, December 14, 1837, Cordelia,³ daughter of Francis² and Elizabeth (Oakman) Flitner. He was a sea captain; was one of a company of thirty-one who went to California to engage in mining, soon after the discovery of gold there. They bought the ship "Obed Mitchell," and sailed from New Bedford, Mar. 31, 1849. Major C. N. Bodfish of Gardiner, president of the Company, went across the plains. Captain Leander Cox of Pittston, commanded the vessel. The members of the company hailed from Pittston, Gardiner, Hallowell, Vassalboro, Whitefield, Montville, Damariscotta, Bangor, and Oldtown, Maine.

They first located at the junction of the San Joaquin and Sacramento Rivers. They built a public house here, and Capt. Flitner died Mar. 2, 1850, and was buried here. Three or four of the company staid to keep the ship and carry on the house, while the others went to Marysville, and still further up the river Yuba, twelve miles, and located for mining at what they named the Kennebec Bar.

He married Sept. 20, 1837, Abigail M.,* daughter of Dea. Elijah and Abigail (Cutts) Jackson. Abigail Cutts was daughter of Samuel⁴ and Sarah (Hill) Cutts (see note on Cutts family).

THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT AT SULGRAVE.

[From The Daily Reporter, Northampton, England, Saturday, Aug. 24, 1889.]

The theft of Washington brasses from Sulgrave church is an archæological loss to the county, for there seems to be little hope of these interesting memorials of the Washingtons being recovered. Nearly a fortnight ago two men, in gentlemanly attire, visited Sulgrave. As they appeared to be Americans no one thought it at all out of the way that they should visit the parish church, where there is a memorial to two ancestors of the founder of the great American Republic. They were allowed free run of the place, which is invariably open all day. Sulgrave church, indeed, is a shrine to which many patriotic Americans make a devotional pilgrimage when visiting the mother country. The Sunday following it was discovered that two of the brasses affixed to the Washington Slab in the nave had been forcibly removed, and taken away. This slab was made after the decease of Amy Washington, the wife of Lawrence Washington, as a memorial of herself and her husband. Six different plates of brass were let in the stone. The first contained the Washington Coat of Arms, a white shield crossed with two red stripes, and toward the top three red stars. This coat of arms, borne by the Washingtons who emigrated to America, was the origin of the Stars and Stripes, or Stars and Garters of the United States, the national flag. Near, one on each side in brass, were formerly effigies of Washington and his wife, and below them on a brass plate of oblong shape, was the following inscription in three lines:—

Here lyeth buried y^e bodys of Laurence Wassingtō Gent & Amee his wyf by whome he had issue iiij sons & vij daughts w^e laurence Dyed y^e day of an^o 15 & Amee Deceased the vi day of October an^o Dñi 1564.

Under this are representations of the four sons and seven daughters in two groups.

The costume of Lawrence Washington and his children is that of the ordinary attire of civilians of the middle of the 16th century. The father wears a close-fitting doublet, a large loose gown, with demi-canon sleeves purfled with fur, and large broad-toed shoes. The boys wear large doublets, knee breeches, long hose, and shoes like their father, and each has his gylficiere at his girdle. The girls wear close-fitting caps, with gowns reaching to the ankles, and secured round the waist with a band. The brass representing Amy Washington no longer remains.

From the brasses it would seem that the decease of the wife was the occasion for the laying down of the monument, as the date of her death, 1564, is inserted, while the date of her husband's demise is left blank (after the custom of the time) to be filled in when he too should die. When he died, in 1583, however, that was not done.

This Lawrence Washington of Sulgrave, whose monument has just been robbed, was twice Mayor of Northampton, in 1533 and again in 1546; and his name appears upon two of the mayoralty shields in the Town Hall of Northampton. He is described by Baker as of Northampton and of Gray's Inn, Esquire. His first wife was Elizabeth Gough, the widow of William Gough of Northampton, and his second, Amy, daughter of Robert Partiger of Greatworth. In the thirtieth year of the reign of Henry VIII (1538-39), the manor of Sulgrave, and all lands in Sulgrave belonging to the dissolved priories of Canon's Ashby and Catesby, were granted to him. After his death, in 1583, his heir, Robert Washington, and Robert's eldest son, also named Laurence, sold the manor to another member of the family.

Of course, the great interest in this memorial centers in the relation Lawrence Washington bore to the founder of the United States Republic. Baker, in his great History of Northamptonshire, traces the pedigree of George Washington from John Washington, of Whitfield, in Lancashire, through this identical Lawrence and his second wife, Amy, and their grandson Lawrence Washington of Sulgrave. Sir Henry Dryden, however, writes:—

According to Baker, the last-named Lawrence had, amongst other sons, John and Lawrence, who emigrated to America, and from the first of whom was descended George Washington, the first President of the United States. It has been shown by Col. Chester, in "The Herald and Genealogist," of August, 1866, that there is no evidence that the John and Lawrence who emigrated were the John and Lawrence the sons of Lawrence who died in 1616, or that they came from this county, and that there is strong presumptive evidence against the identity. Unfortunately, Baker's pedigree has been accepted by nearly all inquirers from his day to the present. It was only a coincidence that a John and Lawrence Washington of the Sulgrave family existed at about the same period as another John and Lawrence Washington emigrated to America.

It is needless here to go into the question of the relative claims of the Lancashire and Northamptonshire branches of the family of John Washington of Whitfield. Each has its champions and its defenders. There are, however, many both in America and in England who believe that George Washington's immediate ancestors were Northamptonshire people.

Time has told somewhat on this monument of Lawrence and Amy Washington, and it is also to be regretted, the hand of the thief as well. The head of Lawrence Washington has been knocked off; the brass effigy of his wife has been stolen and taken away bodily; and the enamel with which the coat of arms was colored has crumbled nearly all away, leaving scarce a trace behind.

The two portions recently taken away are those representing the "iiij sons and vij daughters." Each of these pieces could be covered by a sheet of notepaper. We may add that on the Sulgrave brass the family name is spelled WASHINGTON, such authorities as Bridges, Baker and Dryden to the contrary notwithstanding. In the Northampton Grammar School Deeds the name of this same Lawrence is spelled Wassington. Hudson, in his "Brasses of Northamptonshire," gives a reduced fac-simile of the brasses, but as Sir Henry Dryden points out, he omitted to copy the coat of arms. Probably, however, that was due to the fact that the arms were originally colored, or enameled, and the painstaking author did not consider that a painted memorial should be included in a work on brasses.

GUSTIN (AUGUSTINE JEAN).

The following communication with Mr. George Wilmot Gustin may interest those of our readers in any way connected with this family history, and also those who are curious to see how a name of one of our early settlers became entirely changed on coming to this country :

I have been informed that my ancestor fled to Lynn, Mass., from Falmouth, May 26, 1690, at the second destruction of the town, and that he took with him one chair. I thought it strange indeed that he could have saved even this and carried it with him to Lynn.

John Gustin was married in 1760, was a tax payer in Falmouth in 1777. The old Falmouth records has the date of his birth Feb. 6, 1729, son of David and Jenie, and a grandson of Augustine Jean*

*Willis, in his history of Portland, says : " Among 'lots laid out on the west side of Broad street, Falmouth (now India street, Portland), the fourth lot was to Augustine John, with liberty in the Cove (Clay Cove), arment for a brickyard.'

John or Jean was a Frenchman and purchased of widow Housing a small lot west side of Presumpscot river, where he lived. I had some doubts, says Willis, whether John Gustin and Augustine John were not the same person ; the descendants of John Gustin are numerous here. The word arment is so in the record ; it was probably incorrectly copied. As this lot extended down to Clay Cove, the grant was doubtless intended to convey a privilege on the cove in the rear of the lot for the purpose of making bricks. [I am informed by the antiquary, James Savage of Boston, that Augustine John or Jean, as it is first written, was not a Frenchman, but a native of the Isle of Jersey, where his parents died.

He sold his estate in Jersey in 1677. He came first to Reading, Mass., and was a soldier in the latter part of Phillip's war. In January, 1678, he married Eliza, a daughter of John Brown of Watertown. The name was gradually changed from Augustine Jean to Augustine John first, and then to John Gustin, by which his numerous descendants in Portland and vicinity are now called. He left a widow and seven children.]

John Gustin bought land on Presumpscot river just above the falls, of Thomas Cloice, in 1686, and lived upon it. After the destruction of the town he lived in de LeTaq, a native of St. Ouens, Isle of Jersey. I am trying to write a history of the family, but am well nigh discouraged in the attempt to make a record of the two branches that remain in Maine, descendants of David and Ebenezer.

Augustine was not a refugee from persecution, and he came (1675) ten years before the revocation of the edict of Nantes, from St. Ouens, Isle of Jersey. He was born there Jan. 9, 1647, and was the son of Edmond, who married April 25, 1638, Esther, daughter of Jean Le Rossignot.

Augustine was so named for his mother's brother, M. Augustine Le Rossignot of St. Ouens. He describes himself as a marrin^r, and appears to have been a captain in the merchant service. The pay rolls of Phillip's war would make him a sergeant in the company of Capt. Beeres; at least, no private in the army received the credit given him on the rolls.

I have an idea that Augustine did not come to this country in the Lynn. He returned to Falmouth where he died in 1719, leaving a widow, Elizabeth, and children, Samuel, John, Ebenezer, Thomas, David, Sarah and Abigail.

I have before intimated an opinion that this person is the same who received a grant from Danforth under the name of Augustine John who was a Jerseyman. I am confirmed in that opinion by a fact stated by Peter Housing in a petition in 1687, that his mother sold one-half of his father's farm on the west side of Presumscot river to 'Gustian John, a Frenchman.'

Now Housing was connected by marriage with John Cloice from whom he received land on the Presumscot; and Thomas Cloice, son of John, who received the principal part of his father's land on the river conveyed to John Gustin sixty acres of it Dec. 14, 1686.

John Gustin subsequently claimed and his family occupied it, and his descendants live in that neighborhood to this day (1865). We hear nothing afterward of Augustine John, except as a subscriber to a petition in 1689, in which his name is written 'Gustan John.' John Gustin is again mentioned as a subscriber in a petition for a fortification July 20, 1716, at the town of Falmouth, commonly called Old Casco."

early spring of 1675 alone, but with something of a colony from his native isle. About that time I find the family of De la Close coming to Salem, Mass., from Jersey, their name was likewise "murdered in cold blood," and is to this day simply Dell. May not his companions Pierre, Baudoin Botuineau, Bayer and le Breton, have also come from Jersey. It certainly would have been no more remarkable for these men to have emigrated from St. Ouens than from Cornwall or any other part of the British Empire.

Historically the question is an interesting one. The records of the descendants of Augustine are wonderfully complete, especially those of the three brothers that left Maine, Samuel, John jr. (my great-great-grandfather), and Thomas.

The Hamiltons, Snowdens and Thompsons of Philadelphia; the Chews, Hunters, Greens, etc., of Virginia, and many distinguished families are descended from Augustine.

I am trying to make the record of the Maine Gustins more complete, but find it a work of great difficulty for reason of poor records, and often none at all. The slightest hint the readers of the Recorder can give me on this family will be most gratefully received.

The church at Standish was organized and Rev. John Thompson ordained pastor, Oct. 26, 1768, the original members being John Thompson, Geo. Freeman, Josiah Shaw, David Sanborn, John Pierce, Michael Philbrick and Peter Moulton. Mr. Thompson remained pastor until April 7, 1783, when he was dismissed and went to Berwick. There is no record of church acts after this until the call of Rev. Jonathan Gould, who was ordained as pastor Sept. 18, 1793. He died of consumption, July 26, 1795. Rev. Daniel Marrett was ordained Sept. 21, 1796, and on "Dec. 23, 1829, the pastoral relations of Rev. Daniel Marrett, which had existed for thirty-three years and three months, was dissolved by mutual agreement between him, the church and parish." On the same day Rev. Thomas Tenney was ordained as pastor, and continued such until Feb. 5, 1834, when he was dismissed. The old church became Unitarian, and a new church called The Evangelical Congregational Church was formed.

Rev. A. D. Wheeler was ordained as pastor of the Unitarian church, Jan. 13, 1835; Rev. A. M. Briggs was installed Jan. 25, 1843; Rev. E. J. Gerry installed Sept. 23, 1846; Rev. George Osgood ordained Dec. 22, 1854; Rev. Jacob Caldwell and Rev. Alfred C. Nickerson preached for a time after this.

THE DIGHTON FAMILY.

BY JOSIAH H. DRUMMOND.

THE discoveries of Governor WILLIAMS in England in relation to the family of his ancestress, FRANCES DIGHTON, have been supplemented by other discoveries on this side of the water by EDGAR HODGES REED, Esq., of Taunton, which he has kindly allowed me to make public through the Recorder, in which Gov. WILLIAMS' article has just been published.

KATHARINE DIGHTON, bap. Jan. 16, 1614, in St. Nicholas church in Gloucester, is known to have married, first, Samuel Haighburne, [Hackburn, or Hagburne]. In her father's will, according to Gov. WILLIAMS' correspondent, the name is Hayburne; but subsequent developments suggest that the true reading of the will is Hagburne.

Savage says that Samuel Hackburne and his wife Katharine came to Roxbury and settled there. Their children were:

Elizabeth, b. May 7, 1635 (born in England).

Samuel, b. Jan. 20, 1638.

John, b. May 26, 1640.

Hannah, bap. June 5, 1642, but according to Boston copy of record (which Savage says is erroneous), b. Jan. 5, 1643.

The father was admitted freeman, May 2, 1638, at the same time as Robert Williams of Roxbury; and Robert Williams, Samuel Hagburne, Elizabeth Williams, wife of Robert Williams, and "Katharen Hagborne, wife of Samuel Hagborne," were admitted to the church at Roxbury apparently at the same time. He died Jan. 24, 1643, leaving a will, an abstract of which is published in the New England Hist. and Gen. Register, Vol. 2, p. 261.

KATHARINE married April 14, 1644, Governor THOMAS DUDLEY, and by him had:

Deborah, b. Feb. 27, 1645.

Joseph, b. Sept. 23, 1647.

Paul, b. Sept. 8, 1650.

In the "Dudley Genealogy" is a full account of these children.

Gov. DUDLEY died July 31, 1653, and KATHARINE married, Nov. 8, 1653, Rev. JOHN ALLIN of Dedham, and by him had :

Benjamin, b. Aug. 11, 1654.

Daniel, b. July 31, 1655.

Eliezur, b. May 26, 1658.

He died Aug. 26, 1671, and she died three days later and was buried in the same grave.

Of her children by her first husband nothing has been known, except that Savage says that Hannah married Samuel Hunting, Dec. 24, 1662, and that Samuel held an office of trust in New London in 1664, and had been there four years before, and remained there at least four years afterward.

Dea. REED finds that Elizabeth, daughter of Samuel Hagburne of Roxbury, married Dr. John Chickering of Dedham, but who afterward moved to Charlestown, where he died July 28, 1676. In 1677, she married Thomas Greaves, and died July 22, 1679, aged forty-four years.

Samuel Hagburne jr. was at one time in Charlestown; but he finally came to Taunton, and died there among his kindred on his mother's side.

Dea. REED, in his collection of inscriptions upon the grave-stones in "Old Taunton," has the inscription upon his gravestone still existing, as follows:

Hear lies the body of Samuel Hagborne died November 14, 1725, in the 88th year of his age.

It will be noted that his age at his death corresponds precisely with the date of his birth, already given.

Dea. REED also found the record of the will of Samuel Hagborn in the Bristol County Probate Office, dated Sept. 24, 1723, and proved Jan. 12, 1725-6. In it he gives (among other items):

To the Church of Christ in Oxford, N. E., 50 pounds; said money is due from William Makepeace of Taunton, upon a bond bearing date March 19, 1721. The money to be paid by my executors to Capt. Thos. Moore of Oxford for the church.

To Mary Hall of Taunton, widow of Joseph, 100 pounds; 60 pounds is due me from Mary Shephard of Dorchester, remaining 40 pounds from William Hodges, jr., of Taunton.

To Seth Williams of Taunton 10 pounds.

To Mary Hall his household goods, she to pay his funeral charges.

To Seth Williams and Mary Hall the remainder of his goods, and they to be his executors.

The will is witnessed by William Robinson, Jonathan Shaw and John Hall.

From the fact that no other mention is made of Samuel Hagborne in the Bristol County records, Dea. REED properly infers that he had lived at Taunton, but a comparatively few years.

From Hayward's Gazeteer we learn that:

"The original township of Oxford was granted to JOSEPH DUDLEY and others in 1680, for the accommodation of 30 French Protestant families, etc." JOSEPH DUDLEY was Katharine's son, and half-brother of Samuel Hagborne.

Dea. Reed adds:

They had a minister, but being troubled by the Indians the most of them left and went to Boston, where a French church was maintained by them. Perhaps some of them remained behind, and Samuel Hagborne's gift was to them. While the bequest in this will to Seth Williams was natural (Seth being son of the testator's own cousin), that to Mary Hall was a puzzle, for no relationship between the families was known, save that John Hall in England had married Anna Williams, sister of Richard of Taunton.

But the investigations of Dea. Reed have solved the problem, and brought to light interesting and important facts.

The will of Samuel Hagborne senior, dated July 24, 1643, speaks of "my brother Lugg." There were then in Boston two brothers (as appears by the will of one of them), John and Abraham Lugg.

The will of JOHN DIGHTON (father of Frances), speaks of his eldest daughter JANE.

Savage says that John Lugg of Boston, 1637, by wife JANE had born in Boston :

Elizabeth, b. March 7, 1638 ; bap. March 24, 1639.

Mary, b. Aug., 1642, but bap. Sept. 25, when, according to the record of baptisms, she was "about 4 days old."

John, bap. Aug. 4, 1644, "about 2 days old," who died in 1647.

This indicates pretty strongly that Jane Lugg, the wife of John, was JANE DIGHTON, the elder sister of FRANCES and KATHARINE.

But Dea. REED has found conclusive evidence of this, in a document on record in Bristol County Registry of Deeds, from which the following is an extract :

"Easter Marshall, a widow four score years of age, living in Norton, whose maiden name was Hester Lugg, dau. of Mr. John Lugg and Jane Lugg, his wife, who lived near the city of Gloucester in Great Britain, for and in consideration of the care which her son-in-law, John Hall of said Norton, hath for many years past taken of her in her old age, and that he continueth to take the like care of her, and hath obliged himself to provide for her all things necessary for her comfort during her natural life, and for other good causes and considerations, especially moving," etc.

Gives all her right, etc., in the estate of her honored father and mother, John Lugg and Jane Lugg, deceased, and in any other estate of her kindred and relations which might come to her in Great Britain or New England, to her son-in-law John Hall, whom she appoints her attorney.

Dated Feb. 11, 1713-4, and sworn to March 4, 1713-4. Witnessed by Benjamin Williams and William Leonard.

Widow Esther Bell married Richard Marshall, Feb. 11, 1676-7.

This identifies "Easter Marshall" as Esther Bell, the wife of James Bell, who was killed by the Indians early in 1676, leaving a widow and several children, among them MARY, who married Joseph Hall

July 13, 1693, and ESTHER, who married John Hall (of that part of Taunton which afterward became Norton, and then Mansfield), Dec. 14, 1692, and who was the son-in-law mentioned in the document above described.

She was cousin to Samuel Hagborne, and the Mary Hall, widow of Joseph, mentioned in Samuel's will was his cousin's daughter of the same degree of kindred with him as Seth Williams.

Her age when she executed that instrument shows that she was born in England, and explains why her birth was not recorded in Boston.

It appears from certain proceedings in court under date of October 27, 1647, that John Lugg had then died, leaving five children, and that his widow JANE had married Jonathan Negus. By him she had a son, Isaac, who settled in Taunton, marrying Hannah Andrews, the sister (or daughter) of the Henry Andrews, who was killed by the Indians at the same time Jane's son-in-law, James Bell, was killed.

The descendants of James and Esther Bell are very numerous, and they, as well as those of Frances and Katharine, are found to be descendants of Surgeon John and Jane (Bassett) Dighton.

These facts suggest that Richard and Frances Williams, Samuel and Katharine Hagborne, John and Jane Lugg, and others (very probably George Hall and Abraham Lugg), came to this country together.

It would seem that the name of the vessel and the date of their arrival ought to be within the possibility of discovery. Who will discover them?

NONESUCH POINT.

Willis Papers, Bk. R: 30, — in Portland Public Library.

Oct. 6, 1687.

Laid out to Capt. Silvanus Davis & James English, first—440 acres lying between Long Creek and Nonsuch Creek upon Casco River. Second—92 acres near adjoining to Nonsuch Point.

York Reg., 21: 99.

James Webber deposes 9 March, 1718-19: That he lived in Casco. . . . that the town granted to Thomas Webber a mill privilege on Long Creek which his son Samuel sold to John Skillings, & that "the above mentioned mill was built at Long Creek at the head of the falls, the creek goeth in by 'Nonesuch Point.'"

Town Records, I, 345.

Falmouth Town Meeting, 5 March, 1729.

Agreement with Thomas Westbrook and Samuel Waldo relating to the exchange of certain lands; and among other things,—It is also agreed that there be a committee chosen to run the bounds of 92½ acres of land of Westbrook and Waldo's lying near adjoining to Nonesuch Point, also the bounds of 205 acres att Long Krick &c. &c.

The second patent from Gorges to Trelawny of 200 acres in 1638 extended in a strip of land from New River to River of Casco (Fore River) at the junction of Long Creek. As this land covered much of the tract through which the lower Nonesuch River passed, it appears evident from the above extracts that the whole tract was called by the name of the river; hence the name Nonesuch Point, on River of Casco, at the northern terminus of the Trelawny grant. See map in "Trelawny Papers," p. 63.

WILLIAMS, Robert, of Roxbury, Mass. The undersigned is compiling a record of the descendants of above in both male and female branches — extending to the grandchildren of the females of the name, with their families. He takes this method of reaching those with whom he has not, thus far, been in correspondence, and desires them to send him their addresses and relationship to Robert Williams, of Roxbury, Mass., so that the necessary blanks can be sent to them for such records as may be incomplete.

THE LOMB PRIZE ESSAY. Practical Sanitary and Economic Cooking, adapted to persons of moderate means, by Mrs. Mary Hinman Abel. This little book is considered by good judges to be of great practical use in many families in this country, if it can be placed there. This is purely an effort to better the condition of the home, and to make happier the family circle. The humble citizen of our country, who made possible this essay through his generosity, receives no financial return for his constant expenditure in its distribution. The nominal price placed upon it pays only the clerical labor, postage, etc. It can be had at the bookstores.

KNOX (Nock) Thomas, of Dover, N. H., in 1652, and some of his descendants. This genealogy is compiled by Dr. W. B. Lapham, of Augusta, Me., and is replete with historical sketches and notes. A genealogy of the Sherburne family is added, making a pamphlet of 34 pp., well arranged and neatly printed.

DUDLEY FAMILY, History with genealogical tables, pedigrees, etc., is being continued. We have received No. IV, and find it no less valuable in historical facts and data, than the first. How could it be otherwise with Dean Dudley behind it? Read his preface to No. IV, and see how true it is of many of us. This is a valuable work, not only for the Dudleys, but for all connected with this old and wide spread family.

Address, DEAN DUDLEY,
Wakefield, Mass.

MOULTON—DOUTY. This may certify that I have sold to John Moulton one eighth part of a Single Share in a good privateer armed vessel for six months cruze which cruze I promise to go the winter ensuing and the s^d Moulton as a consideration for the above Eighth part of a single share promises to allow to me Stephen Douty, all that is due him from me on account, and to hall one load and a half of hay from the fresh meadow to my hovel, and to hall fire wood for me two days while I am gone, or more than two days if the wood is cut and is wanted by my family:—to the performance of which we bind our selves in the penal sum of fifty pounds each this 27th day of November, A.D., 1778.

JOHN MOULTON,
STEPHEN DOUTY.

To the agent whom I shall appoint to take care of my share in the above mentioned Cruize you are hereby desired to pay to John Moulton one Eighth part of my share agreeable to the above writing.

JOHN MERRILL, Agent. STEPHEN DOUTY,

S. M. WATSON,
Portland, Me.

WATSON. I am trying to obtain information concerning my branch of this family. There is a tradition that about the middle of the seventeenth century, two brothers came from Scotland to this country, and that my family is descended from one of them. I have been told that Parmenus¹ b. ? 1700? m. Mary Flanders; had Obediah², Peletiah³, Parmenus⁴, Nichodemus⁵, Caleb⁶, John⁷.

Nicodemus⁵ resided in Hampstead, N. H., m. Elizabeth Harriman, and had Daniel⁸, Abijah⁹, who d. Dec. 1, 1828, at Salisbury, N. H.; Caleb¹⁰, b. at Hampstead, Dec. 6, 1760, and Ithamar¹¹.

Caleb¹⁰, m.—and had Thomas¹², b. in Weare, N. H., May 10, 1782, m. Rebecca Davis; resided at Shapleigh and Thorndike, Me., d. at the latter place Dec. 12, 1863, leaving five children, among whom are Charles F.¹³, of Troy, Me., and Grenville M.¹⁴, of Thorndike: Ithamar¹⁵, Caleb¹⁶, Safford¹⁷, Lydia¹⁸, Moses¹⁹, and Alice²⁰.

I am son of Porter B.²¹, son of Ithamar¹⁵, son of Caleb¹⁰, son of Nichodemus⁵, son of Parmenus¹?

Any information concerning the genealogy of this family will be gladly received by

SOUTHWESTERN TEXAS, THE ITALY OF AMERICA.

San Antonio, the invalid's Paradise.

LAKE VIEW,

The Most Desirable Suburb in San Antonio for a Home.

LOCATION AND SCENERY.—Lake View is situated two miles west from the center of, and at an elevation of about one hundred feet above, the city of San Antonio. All the principal streets running west lead directly to the property. Its commanding elevation furnishes scenic advantages unsurpassed in Southwest Texas.

HEALTHFULNESS.—Probably there is no part of America that offers more attractions to persons suffering from throat or pulmonary troubles, including asthma, also kidney and rheumatic affections, than Southwest Texas, and of Southwest Texas there is no spot more healthy than San Antonio and its suburbs. The writer speaks, not only from personal experience, but from the standpoint of a physician who has given this matter a great deal of careful study, and who knows his statements are accurate.

Lake View offers great inducements at the present time as a winter resort, for the following reasons: The suburbs is for strictly first-class residence property; the elevation is high and commanding; the atmosphere is free from all impurities, is not malarious, and is rich in ozone; the temperature is delightful; in fact, nature and art have combined to make Lake View a most charming suburban home.

AS AN INVESTMENT it offers special advantages; the prices of the property are very low, with the prospect of an early and rapid rise. The New England Land Company offers this property in single house lots, blocks, or acreage property.

A cordial invitation is extended to all persons who visit San Antonio to call upon the General Manager at the office of the Company, where any information pertaining to this part of our country will be cheerfully furnished. For further particulars, address,

William P. Watson, No. 9 East Houston Street, San Antonio, Texas.

PORTLAND, TEXAS,

Is the new town situated upon the cliffs which rise to a height of from thirty to forty feet above the water on the north shore of the bay of Corpus Christi. The future of Portland is assured for the following reasons. The San Antonio & Aransas Pass road now runs directly through the land, and a railroad station is established at Portland. It is so situated that all the future railroads from Central and Southern Texas or Mexico, to reach the Aransas Pass Harbor, will run through the property.

It is in near proximity to both Aransas Pass Harbor and the New Ship Canal which is now being built through Mustang Island by Col. E. H. Ropes of Corpus Christi. Aransas Pass Harbor will soon become one of the finest upon our coast, and as soon as the ship canal and Aransas Harbor is finished, Corpus Christi Bay will become the scene of great activity. The most rapid growth will follow which has ever been known in our country. Portland is famous for its delicious oysters and other sea foods. It is famous for its health. Its death rate is less than that of the most famous health resorts in the world. This is due to its situation on a noble bluff facing the salt water, swept by the salt sea breezes fresh from the Gulf of Mexico. The breezes make it cooler in summer than any locality in Texas. These breezes also make it warmer in winter than any locality in Texas. The lowest thermometer, 1888-89, was only 40°. It had only one freezing spell in the winter of 1889 and 1890. Farms here will grow anything: tobacco, sugar, cotton, figs, grapes. A large vineyard in the neighborhood is valued at $1,000 an acre. They grow peaches. Garden truck is shipped from these lands every month in the year. The rich, dark soil needs no fertilizing. Rainfall right here is heavier than in the Middle or New England States.

A party of New England gentlemen have purchased twelve hundred and eighty acres of land in Portland, which has one mile frontage upon the bluff, and extends back from the shore two miles. These gentlemen are about forming a syndicate in New England, and propose to offer the land at an extremely low figure, and as soon as the syndicate is formed a company will be incorporated. This land has doubled in value since it was purchased, and within three months will be again worth double its present value. This is one of the choicest investments which has ever been offered to the people of New England.

JONATHAN CILLEY OF MAINE

AND

WILLIAM J. GRAVES OF KENTUCKY, REPRESENTATIVES IN CONGRESS.

AN HISTORICAL DUEL, 1838.

AS NARRATED BY GEN. GEO. W. JONES,* CILLEY'S SECOND, TO E. M. BOYLE, IN PHILADELPHIA PRESS.

WAS delegate in Congress from the Territory of Wisconsin in February, 1838, when the debate took place in the House of Representatives between Jonathan Cilley, of Maine, on the one hand, and Henry A. Wise, Bailie Peyton and John Bell on the other. The question was the character of *General Jones was Mr. Cilley's second, and he is now, 1889, the only survivor of an encounter in which President Van Buren, President Pierce, President Polk, Jefferson Davis, Henry Clay, Thomas H. Benton, and many other leading men were interested, directly and indirectly. General Jones, in his narrative, which is given practically in his own words, makes a great many statements of historic value — the fact, for instance, that Henry Clay wrote the form of the challenge, and insisted that the duel should be fought to the death. General Jones, who was a delegate in Congress from Wisconsin, for twelve years, a United States senator and minister to Bogota, is a sprightly old gentleman of eighty-five years, quick of speech, with a most wonderful memory. He served in the war of 1812, and the Black Hawk war, and filled various positions until the close of his political career, which ended by his being sent to Fort Lafayette for two months during the early days of the war, for some improper communication with Jefferson Davis. General Jones claims to have presented in Congress the first scheme to build a trans-continental railway, and he did much toward making public improvements in the West.

the administration of President Van Buren, who was attacked by the three gentlemen, and defended by Mr. Cilley. Mr. James K. Polk, afterward president, was then speaker. Mr. Cilley arose in his place and said:

“It is a very easy matter for the gentlemen to make charges against the administration of Mr. Van Buren, but it must be remembered that the newspapers charge that General James Watson Webb, editor of the Courier and Enquirer, of New York, (then the organ of the Whig party and of Henry Clay), received a bribe of $52,000 for his advocacy of the re-chartering of the bank of the United States.’

“Wise, Peyton and Bell flew at Mr. Cilley at once. Mr. Wise said: ‘Does the gentleman charge General Webb with having received a bribe of $52,000?’ Mr. Cilley replied: ‘I make no charge — the newspapers make the charge.’ Mr. Wise then asked: ‘Does the gentlemen believe the charge?’ Mr. Cilley replied: ‘I make no declaration as to what I believe — I only state what the newspapers say.’

“General Webb had in the gallery of the House a friend, Dr. Davis, correspondent for his paper. Davis reported the furious debate to General Webb, in New York. Webb came down to Washington and called upon his friends and William J. Graves, representative from Louisville, and Mr. Graves was asked to bear a note from General Webb to Mr. Cilley, which he did. Upon Mr. Graves presenting it to Mr. Cilley, he declined to receive it. Mr. Cilley said; ‘I have no acquaintance with General Webb, and I do not wish to receive any note from him.’ Graves returned with the note to Webb’s mess, at Miss Hill’s boarding-house, on Pennsylvania avenue. It was called the Kentucky mess, Henry Clay being at the head of it.

“Mr. Graves told them that Mr. Cilley had declined to receive the note. (This I got afterward from General Wise.) Mr. Clay said ‘Go back and tell the — Yankee that it isn’t a challenge, that it is merely a note of inquiry.’ Mr. Graves went back, saw Mr. Cilley, and told him that it was a note of inquiry, whereupon Mr. Cilley replied: “Mr. Graves, as I said before, I have no acquaintance with General Webb, and have no desire to receive the note.’ Mr. Graves said that placed him in an unpleasant situation. Mr. Cilley responded: ‘I have the highest respect for you. I do not decline to receive this note out of any disrespect to you, but for the reasons I have stated.’ Graves went back to the Kentucky mess, and told what had occurred. Mr. Clay said: ‘Graves, this is an insult to you. You have got to challenge the Yankee.’

“Mr. Clay drew the form of the challenge in writing, and Graves then went from the Kentucky mess to see Mr. Wise at King’s, and asked Wise if he would take a challenge from him (William J. Graves) to Mr. Cilley. Wise immediately complied. He took the challenge to Mr. Cilley in the morning. Mr. Cilley took the note and said, ‘I accept the challenge, Mr. Wise, and will send my friend to you.’

“Mr. Wise told me he modified the challenge as drawn up by Mr. Clay, because it was too peremptory, of too harsh a nature. Mr. Cilley sent his friend, Franklin Pierce, afterward president of the United States, then senator from New Hampshire, to my boarding-house on Capitol Hill.

“I went over from the House of Representatives for dinner, and walked into Dr. Linn’s room, as he was ill and confined to his bed. As I entered the room I saw Franklin Pierce standing between Dr. Linn’s bed and Colonel Thomas H. Benton, who was on his left. I heard Dr. Linn say: ‘There’s the man; he’ll do it.’ Then

I heard Colonel Benton say: 'They can't object to the rifle; you can refer them to the case of Moore and Letcher (and one or two others whose names I forget), who fought with rifles.' I went out of Dr. Linn's room to order some dinner for him at his request. Senator Pierce followed me, and, putting his hand on my shoulder, said: 'General, will you do this?'

"I asked, "What do you mean?" 'Don't you know,' said he, 'what's going on?' 'No, I don't,' said I. 'Don't you know that our friend Cilley has been challenged by Graves?' 'Why, no, I don't,' said I. 'What's the matter?' 'In consequence of that debate the other day,' replied Mr. Pierce. 'Why,' said I, 'Mr. Graves didn't have anything to say in that debate; he didn't say an objectionable word that day.' 'Well,' said Mr. Pierce, 'Mr. Graves has challenged Mr. Cilley, and Cilley has sent me to ask you to be his second.'

"'Mr. Pierce,' I said, 'I can't consent to act as second at all. It will connect me with the Democratic party.' I belonged to neither party at the time. Delegates in those days never took part in national politics. 'It will destroy my influence in Congress. It will also defeat my bill for an appropriation to make a survey of a railway by way of Dubuque from Milwaukee to the Pacific coast, the first proposed trans-continental line.'

"Well," said Mr. Pierce, in reply to my objection, "will you go over with me to the House of Representatives? Mr. Cilley's second choice is General Miller of Massachusetts." I said: "I'll do anything except to be publicly connected with this duel.' I got into a carriage with Mr. Pierce, and we drove over to the Capitol. He asked me to sit down in the vice-president's room while he went to see General Miller. He soon returned, saying General Miller peremptorily refused to serve. He then asked me to go with him to see Cilley.

"We got into the carriage, and on the way saw Colonel James Schaumberg, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth streets, on the north side. We saw him walking along with his ruffles all sticking out on his bosom and wristbands. Pierce said: 'There's Colonel Schaumberg, who had that duel on horseback with broadswords. His sword glanced off his opponent's blade, and cut off part of the horse's head.' He was father of Emily Schaumberg of Philadelphia, the famous belle. Mr. Pierce stopped the driver and called to Schaumberg. I said: 'For God's sake, don't take him.' I objected simply because I knew the fiery temper of the man, but Schaumberg got into the carriage.

"We drove up to Dr. R——'s. Then we walked up into Dr. R——'s room, where I saw Dr. R—— and his son, a doctor also, and Dr. Duncan and Bynum, member of the House of Representatives from North Carolina, and Jonathan Cilley. As soon as we entered Cilley jumped up and cordially greeted me. 'I thank you, my dear General, for coming to stand by me on this occasion.' Said I: 'Mr. Cilley, I have not come to stand by you. I cannot serve you as second.' He said: 'You won't refuse to be my second?' I said: 'If I serve it will ruin my prospects for delegate in Congress.' He said: 'Come out here and let me talk to you,' and he took me out into the hall. He said: 'Now, General, I have stood by you in all your measures here in Congress, we have served together at our great twenty-second of February ball at Carusi's, and have aided you in every way possible, and we have been managers of this Washington birthday ball. Mr. Graves is a larger man than I am. He can take me by the collar with one hand, hold me up and cowhide or cane me with the other, and I have no alternative but to fight him on this challenge.'

"Mr. Cilley was a man who was perfectly irresistible. I consented to serve him. I went in and said: 'Now, how do you want to fight, and when and where?' Cilley said: 'I want to fight immediately.' 'What do you want to fight with?' 'Rifles.'" 'Have you got a rifle?' I asked. 'Yes!' Cilley went to the clothespress, or Dr. Duncan did, and took out a rifle, beautifully ornamented with silver, and handed it to me. I said: 'This rifle is too small. The bore is very small.'" Dr. Duncan spoke up then, saying: 'I had this rifle made to order. I can take the head off a squirrel on the highest tree in the Miami bottom.' 'It's too small," I persisted. Mr. Cilley said: 'I like it except this silver end-piece is too long, and the trigger a little too soft.' I said: 'I can make the trigger as hard as you please, and I can take off the end-piece.' He said the end-piece caught in his coat. I took my seat at the table, and wrote out the terms of the duel, which were to fight at eighty yards, with rifles, on the Marlborough road, leading to Baltimore.

"I immediately drew the terms upon which they were to fight, but I said, 'Mr. Cilley, you have seen only one rifle, have you?' He said, 'Only one.' I said, 'I know that my friend, John Forsyth (then secretary of state) has a fine rifle.' I said to Dr. Duncan, 'take this note and get Dr. R——'s rifle.' I said to Schaumberg, 'Jim, go to Mr. Blum, and Burnham you go to Forsyth and get his rifle and bring them here, whilst I go to deliver this acceptance of the challenge to Mr. Graves.' I went down to Mr. Wise's room at King's and rang the bell. The servant came, and I asked him if Mr. Wise was in. 'Yes, master,' he said. Oh, I am getting ahead of my story. I had asked Cilley why he preferred rifles. 'Are you well acquainted with the rifle?' said I. 'No, I am not,' he said, 'but I expect the Kentuckian would prefer pistols, therefore I demand rifles that I may be on an equality.'

"Well, I walked into the house, and there I saw Mr. Wise, and Mr. Graves standing by his side, examining a pair of duelling pistols. Said I, 'Gentlemen, you are engaged in the very business I came to see you about.' Wise said, 'Graves you had better go out.' Graves went out. I handed the acceptance to Mr. Wise, saying, 'Here are Mr. Cilley's terms in writing.' (If Mr. Cilley had not accepted verbally, I would never have let him fight.) Mr. Wise uttered an oath and cried, 'Great God! — —, who ever heard of such a thing as rifles?' Said I, 'These are the terms upon which we fight, with rifles, immediately, on the Marlborough road instead of Bladensburg, so as to avoid interruption.'

"'Well,' said Wise, 'I don't know where there is a rifle in the whole city.' Then he swore again, and said in disgust, '— —! Rifles? Why, it's barbarous!' I said, 'I have heard of their being used before.' It just then occurred to me what I heard Colonel Benton say. I went back and told what had occurred, and Cilley said, 'Didn't I tell you they expected to fight with pistols?'

"Cilley was cool, calm, collected and cheerful. He was as brave as a man could be, and a kind hearted gentleman, too. When I had told them what had occurred, Dr. Duncan said: 'I expected they would say they could not get a rifle.' My people had secured a rifle from Forsyth and Schaumberg had got another, but Duncan didn't get one. He was bound to have his own fowl rifle used. 'Well, now,' Duncan says, 'didn't I tell you so? General, I just want you to go back and tell them we have two rifles we don't want, and they can have their choice or take both.' Schaumberg said, 'That's right.' I went back to Wise's room and said: 'I have come back to tender you the use of either of two rifles.' Mr. Wise said: 'We have now got one.'

"Next morning, immediately after breakfast, I got at Fuller's hotel an omnibus (the only one in Washington; they were new in those days) to take our party out. By the articles of agreement, each second was to have one surgeon and two friends, and each second could carry two pistols, but no other arms were to be on the ground, and no other persons belonging to either party were to be present. We started out, Mr. Cilley's party in the omnibus, the other party in two hacks. When we got to Dawson's I got out, went up to my room, got my buffalo long boots that come up to the thighs, and my robe. I put the robe under Cilley's feet to keep him from shivering — to keep him warm. As he rode along he said jocularly, 'General, I'll have to go to Wisconsin to live. I'll never be able to get any recognition in Maine after this.'

"By and by, when we had got out of town, I saw one or two men on horseback close to the Graves party behind us. I told my driver to stop, and said: 'Mr. Wise, are those gentlemen connected with you?' He said: 'I tried to drive them back, but couldn't, they said this is a free country, and they wouldn't go back.' I said: 'Mr. Graves, you have Mr. Calhoun and Mr. Haines. This is not in accordance with our articles of agreement.' He said: 'They're not to be on the ground.' 'Well,' said I, 'I see you have two rifles in there.' Said he: 'In this one we got the bullet half way down and couldn't get it out or put it in farther. We'll give it to you, if you wish.'

"When we get along further we saw a deserted field, and alighted. Mr. Wise and I locked arms and stepped off eighty paces. It was a thawing day, although there was a pretty severe wind. We came back then to the middle of the ground, half from each end, and we tossed up for choice of positions, the one who won the toss to choose the position, and the other to give the word. Wise drew the right to choose his position, and I to give the word. We took our positions, twenty steps each from the line of fire, between the two men, I on Mr. Cilley's right, and Mr. Wise on Mr. Graves' right. Each of us had our duelling pistols by our side. Mr. Wise and I met in the center, and loaded the rifles, each in the presence of the other. Each one placed his principal, and put the rifle in his hand, the latter holding it at an angle of about forty-five degrees from the ground.

"I gave the word thus: 'Gentlemen, are you ready? Fire! One, two, three; stop.' At the word 'Fire,' Mr. Cilley fired into the ground, not ten feet in front of him. Mr. Graves drew up and took deliberate aim. As soon as he fired I called, 'Mr. Wise, all right?' and the answer was 'Yes.' I went to my friend and he to his. Mr. Graves made a dead miss. I said, 'Mr. Wise, I hope now you are satisfied; my friend has fired into the ground not ten feet from him, and your friend, Mr. Graves, has taken deliberate aim. I hope you are satisfied.' Said he, 'No, Mr. Graves requires another fire.' I said, 'Well, load up, then.' We met again, loaded as before, and I again gave the word.

"At the word 'fire,' Mr. Graves fired his gun off, Mr. Cilley took deliberate aim, and at about the word 'three,' fired. As soon as the rifle went off Mr. Graves stepped back a little, and I was certain he was shot. Said I: 'All right?' Mr. Wise replied, 'Yes.' I said to Cilley: 'You made a fine shot.' 'Yes,' he says, 'I think I hit him.' Wise went to Graves and talked with him. I said again: 'I hope now you are satisfied.' 'Well, no,' Mr. Wise said. He had talked considerably with Graves before he came back. I said, 'I think it ought to stop now.' He replied, 'Mr. Graves insists upon another fire.' Jim Schaumberg spoke up and said: 'By God, General, I think we had better make a general fight of this.' I remonstrated, saying: 'I think this had better be stopped.' Wise and John J. Crittenden and Menafee now had a triangular talk, but Graves insisted on another fire. We loaded up again, and as before I gave the word.

"At the word 'three,' both guns went off simultaneously. Persons who didn't see the smoke swore there was but one explosion. Mr. Cilley fell down. His rifle struck the frozen ground, and broke off at the breech. I said, 'All right.' Mr. Wise replied, 'Yes, sir.' 'Just as I got to Mr. Cilley he gave one slow gasp and was dead. He never spoke.'"

"Well, I got our omnibus. Mr. Wise came within twenty yards of me and said: 'How's your friend?' Said I, 'He is dead.' He went back, came again directly and said: 'General Jones, have you any objection to Mr. Graves seeing Mr. Cilley?' 'None at all.' He went back, and he, Graves and John J. Crittenden came walking up to Cilley. As they walked deliberately toward the body I saw Wise and Crittenden talking, and I was afterward informed the latter said: 'Graves, you hadn't better go up,' and they turned and went away.

"The femoral artery was cut in two. We put the body in the bottom of the omnibus, and came back to Best's with it, where Mr. Cilley had boarded.

"On the following Sunday morning my servant came to me and said: 'Mr. Wise of Virginia wants to see you.' I went down to the parlor to meet him. He said: 'General, are you willing to join me in making a statement for the public about this duel?' Our breakfast bell rang, and I asked him to take breakfast with me, and I would consider the matter. It was Sunday morning. He said he had had an early breakfast in order that he might catch me before I went out. He went up to my room, and I went down to breakfast. I consulted Colonel Thomas H. Benton, president of our mess, and thirty years senator from Missouri, 'Who do you think I have in my room?' I said; 'Mr. Wise of Virginia, second for Graves. He came to ask me to join him in a statement for the public. I didn't give him any answer. What do you think about it?' Colonel Benton said: 'George, my son, that's just right; you ought to do that.' He continued: 'When I had a duel with Lucas our parties made a joint statement for the newspapers.'

"Mr. Wise and I spent a whole day in making out that statement. Where we agreed we put it down. Where we couldn't agree, Wise would put it down as he understood it, and I would put it down as I understood it. I had never met Mr. Wise before, but from his manner I had formed an impression that he was a disagreeable man. We became devoted friends, and I found him to be a kind-hearted, generous gentleman."

*The subject of a "Girl's Life Eighty Years Ago," mostly a collection of her letters, published by Scribner, N. Y., 1888. Her name is entered on these records as Betsey, sometimes called Elizabeth, and shortened to Elize. The above book says she was the third child in a family of twelve, but according to these records she was the sixth.—[Ed.] Her father came of English stock, and was born in Leicester, Mass., where his family had long been settled. Here he studied medicine, and when he had finished his course, he left his native place, and settled in Scarborough, Maine, where his talents and character soon won him a good position, and having some knowledge of law, was afterward appointed a judge in the Court of Common Pleas. His wife, "pretty Polly King," as she was familiarly called by her friends, was the second child of Mr. King, by his first wife. The eldest child was Rufus, who played a distinguished part in the early history of our country. Elizabeth Southgate married Walter Bowne, in 1803, and had Walter, 1806, and Mary, July, 1808, and died Feb. 19, 1909.—CLARENCE COOK.

CATTLE MARKS, 1702-12.

COPIED FROM ORIGINAL BY S. M. WATSON.

[With the early settlers of this country, fences for stopping cattle, horses, swine, etc., were not always possible, and these animals were allowed by law to "run at large" after being properly marked "as y^e law directs;" each settler could then claim his cattle wherever found, he having his own established mark entered on the record book of the town, by which his property must be proved.

The following entries found in the Kittery town records in 1702-12, show not only their cattle marks as a custom and necessity of the time, but establish the names of some of the settlers as property holders at the time and place mentioned.]

John Morrell jun.'s cattle's ear mark — Top cut on y^e near ear, a slit in y^e top of y^e off ear, and a piece cut out under y^e same.

NOTES, QUERIES, ETC.

BAPTISMAL AND MARRIAGE RECORDS OF THE OLD DUTCH CHURCH OF KINGSTON. 1660 to 1809. EDITED BY ROSWELL RANDALL HOES, ETC., ETC.—These Records, as edited, contain valuable information relating to many of the earliest settlers of the States of New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, etc., and of their European homes. Through this varied information the book becomes a most important addition to the library of the genealogist.

It has been printed at the DeVinne Press, 12 Lafayette Place, New York, as a 4to volume of 797 pp., including index. Price $10.00
Copies can be obtained by addressing Mrs. Roswell Randall Hoes, 39 East Second Street, Frederick, Maryland.

WIGHTS IN AMERICA.—The book contains not only descendants of Thomas Wight of the name of Wight, but likewise his descendants, for several generations, of other names than Wight. There are many instances where the line is continued four, five, six and seven generations after the name Wight has disappeared. In addition there are more than one hundred pedigrees, long or short, of families that have intermarried with the Wights—such as Adams, Alden, Baxter, Belknap, Cleveland, Corbin, Corey, Denison, Everett, Fairbanks, Fletcher, Griswold, Grant, etc. The book would adorn any table. The edition is limited. The price $7.50, carriage at my expense; orders with the money should be sent to LOWELL FAMILY.—The writer is collecting information relating to the genealogy and history of the families bearing the name of Lowell in Maine and Massachusetts, and invites correspondence upon the subject.

Any assistance towards this object, pecuniary or otherwise, will be gratefully accepted by the undersigned. This book will cost, when published, about one dollar ($1.00) per copy; if you wish to subscribe, or assist me in this undertaking, please forward your name and address to

W. L. LOWELL,
188 Boylston St., Jamaica Plain, Mass.

DAVID J. SYLVESTER.—Information wanted of the relatives or friends of David Sylvester, who left the State of Maine in or about 1817 and went to Ross county, Ohio. Address JOHN J. SYLVESTER, Carrollton, Carroll county, Missouri.

GENEALOGY OF DESCENDANTS OF JOHN THOMSON, OF PLYMOUTH, MASS., (1621-3) AND SKETCHES OF ALLEN, COOKE AND HUTCHINSON. 8vo. pp 272, PRICE $2.50 POSTPAID.—“The Thomson Genealogy contains all the genealogical matter contained in the book of Ignatius Thomson, published in 1841, which is one of the rarest of the rare genealogies which bring great prices. It also contains a great deal of matter collected from various sources by Mr. Thompson of Lansing, who has re-arranged the whole on the REGISTER PLAN. The compiler deserves credit for the manner in which he has performed his labor. The book is well printed, illustrated by portraits, and has full indexes.”
NEW ENGLAND HISTORICAL AND GENEALOGICAL REGISTER. CHARLES H. THOMPSON.

FAIRFIELD.—I would like information concerning John Fairfield who m. Elizabeth Appleton of Boston. Their dau. Eunice Fairfield m. Dr. Joseph Whipple of Boston, who was b. about 1730, and was a surgeon in the navy during the Revolution, and lost at sea in 1777. He lost three sons and five daus., three of latter died unmarried in early life.

His youngest child, Mary Tappan Whipple, b. Nov. 9, 1777, at Manchester, Mass., m. Feb. or Mar. 1801, Joseph Cushman, at Topsham, Me., where the latter was b. Dec. 22, 1776. It would seem probable that after the father's death, the child and perhaps the widow went to relatives in Maine. Any information will be gratefully received by Chas. W. Deering.

16 Fullerton Ave. Chicago, Ill.

JOSIAH WILLIAMS with his wife Bethiah are said to have moved from Middleboro or Taunton to Maine after the Revolution, say about 1789; and his brother Silas is supposed to have moved also to Maine and married there. Can any one give me any information in relation to them? JOSIAH H. DRUMMOND.

Portland, Me.

SOLDIERS OF KING PHILIP'S WAR.—In January, 1883, the Rev. Mr. Bodge commenced in the New England Historical and Genealogical Register a series of articles under the title of "SOLDIERS OF KING PHILIP'S WAR." Thirty-three numbers were published, the last of which appeared in April, 1891. They furnished lists of the soldiers of Massachusetts Colony who served in the Indian war of 1675—1677, with sketches of the principal officers and copies of ancient documents and records relating to the war.

The value of this new contribution to the historical and biographical literature of New England can at once be seen.

This series of articles has been reprinted in a handsome octavo volume of 328 pages, with a full index of names. The introduction to the volume gives an historical review of the events of the war.

Price, $5.00. By mail, $5.12. Only a small edition—97 copies—has been issued; and those who wish to secure the work should make early application. It is invaluable for public libraries and collectors of Americana.

Copies can be obtained of John Ward Dean, 18 Somerset Street, Boston, Mass., or of the author, Rev. George M. Bodge, 215 Lexington Street, East Boston, Mass.

FLITNER FAMILY.—Erata. Near the bottom of p. 348 the paragraph beginning "He married Sept. 20, etc."—and ending with ("See note on Cutts family;") and also the note at bottom of same p., Abigail M. Jackson, etc.; are duplicated from p. 345—6 and should have been omitted.

DRAPER FAMILY.—I am writing a history of this family, and shall be glad of any information concerning the same.

I. M. DRAPER.

Historical and Genealogical RECORDER.

VOL. VI.

OCTOBER 1889.

No. 4.

GEORGE BARRELL EMERSON.

An extract by permission from R. C. Watterson's memoir.

IN the town of Wells, Maine, Sept. 12, 1797, (then a part of Massachusetts), George B. Emerson was born. His father was a graduate of Harvard, a man of uncommon ability, with scholarly tastes, acquirements, and an able physician. Beloved and respected, he not only had a wide professional practice, but he made the schools a special object of his care. He had the right word for parents and pupils, and exerted a beneficent influence wherever he went.

Mr. Emerson's grandfather was a clergyman in Hollis, New Hampshire, where he was an acceptable preacher, and was widely known through the county of Hillsborough for the pre-eminent skill with which he fitted young men for college. His gift of teaching was transmitted from father to son, and gained with time, fresh impulse and inspiration.

Mr. Emerson's boyhood had nothing in it of special excitement. He was contented and happy with the simplest method of life.

Quiet in his manners, but deeply in earnest. He possessed an excellent balance of character. It never appeared to be an effort for him to acquire knowledge, and when acquired it appeared to remain a part of himself and had no tendency to be forgotten. Only in the winter months did George attend school. In the summer he worked upon his father's farm and garden. At first thought, this may appear to have been a serious privation, and to many it would have proved so; but George accounted this a piece of great good fortune. It gave him that out-of-door life, the benefit of which he felt through all his after years.

The most fragile plant he studied with unwearied care, and not a tree of the forest escaped his notice; each revealed to him some secret law of its being.

Preparatory to entering Harvard College, he attended for a time the Dummer Academy at Byfield where he devoted himself to Latin and Greek. Any additional preparation was made at home under the care of his father. In 1813 he commenced his college life, and here he attempted to make four hours' sleep balance twenty of work. As the result he became nearly blind and his whole physical system broke down; he was then obliged to cease work and place himself under his father's professional care until he recovered his health.

While at Cambridge he was appointed Tutor in mathematics and Natural Philosophy. During the college vacations Mr. Emerson taught school in accordance with the general custom. In the Junior year he took a school situated near the saw-mills at Saco, where he was called to govern as rude and boisterous a set of young people as could well be found. He spoke of a flame which one day burst from the windows of the old school-house, and in half an hour there was nothing left but a handful of ashes. In the Senior year he taught a school at Bolton, where he found pupils more to his taste.

On graduating from Harvard he at once made teaching his business and this he followed for more than forty years; in this capacity he aimed, under all circumstances, to develop that which was noblest, truest and best. But it was not simply as a school teacher that Mr. Emerson exerted his power. He became one of the foremost lecturers in the sciences our country has produced.

In the works of nature he everywhere beheld the proofs of a Supreme Intelligence, and was grateful if he could in any degree be to others an interpreter of the divine thought.

Mr. Emerson with his broad sympathy, could not pass by any of the sciences with indifference. They each had their peculiar interests. But life is too short, and the faculties of man too limited to enable any one to grasp the whole domain of nature, or master the entire realm of knowledge, and as a rule some one department of study will through inevitable circumstances gain a preference. Hence, from various causes, botanical researches occupied much of Mr. Emerson's time and thought. The trees, shrubs, plants and flowers of New England held a prominent place in his mind. The professorship of Natural History, and the direction of the Botanical Garden at Harvard University, were offered to him, showing how fully his tastes were understood and his acquirements recognized.

Though he declined this professorship, the love of nature clung to him. His thoughts went back to the old homestead, his work and observations on the farm and in the garden. Trees and flowers were the study of his childhood, and the delight of his advancing years.

Familiar as Mr. Emerson was with the agricultural and botanical products of New England, he could not be satisfied with anything which might appear superficial. He therefore devoted ten or twelve weeks through nine successive summers to exploring the whole Commonwealth of Massachusetts, penetrating through all the adjoining States, and left nothing undone which might add to the value of his investigations.

The full report of these explorations published by order of the Legislature, in 1846 was widely welcomed, and after a quarter of a century "Emerson's Trees and Shrubs of Massachusetts" still retains its popularity, while the recognition of its literary merit and substantial worth will cause it to be handed down from generation to generation.

One of the last labors of Mr. Emerson's life was to carefully revise the whole work, sparing no expense to have its information complete down to that time, and its illustrations such as should reflect honor upon his country. These volumes, for exactness of knowledge, thoroughness of detail, artistic skill and consummate genius in the illustrative drawings with a perfect adaptation to the purpose for which the work was prepared, render it a fitting monument to the memory of the writer.

Mr. Emerson traveled extensively in his own country and in Europe. His familiarity with history, science and literature, must have given him through all his journeyings, a fresh impulse to his mind; while his intimacy with the ancient and modern languages enabled him to converse freely everywhere with men of letters, artists and artisans.

In 1859 he received from Harvard University the degree of Doctor of Laws. He was early elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, of which through many years he continued a valuable associate.

It is understood to have been through Mr. Emerson's influence that his friend Mr. James Arnold, of New Bedford, left the munificent bequest upon which the Arnold Arboretum at Cambridge is founded.

Mr. Emerson married in 1823, Olivia, daughter of the Rev. Dr. Buckminster of Portsmouth, N. H., and sister of the Rev. Joseph S. Buckminster one of the cherished names of New England. Mrs. Emerson died in 1832, leaving three children. George, who graduated at Cambridge in 1845; and after spending two years in Europe died in 1848. Francis, the second son took his degree at Harvard in 1849, and died in 1867. The only daughter, Lucy survives, and is the wife of the Hon. John Lowell of Brookline, Mass.

In 1834 Mr. Emerson married Mary Flemming, daughter of the late William Rotch, of New Bedford, and sister of Mrs. James Arnold.

The whole life of George B. Emerson portrayed the attractiveness of truth. With clear perceptions and calm judgement he was faithful to his highest convictions. Sincere in his goodness, each duty was fulfilled with undeviating integrity. The kind Providence that watched over him through all his pilgrimage attended him to the last, and with brightest anticipations he passed into the glorious future on March 4, 1881, at the age of eighty-four years.

“His riper age

Marked with some act of goodness every day;
And watched by eyes that loved him, calm and sage,
Faded his late declining years away.
Cheerful he gave his being up, and went
To share the holy rest that waits a life well spent.”

The compiler of the foregoing sketch of a portion of the Moulton Families intended at the outset merely to put in form to be preserved Mr. Joseph Dow's unclassified sketch of the first three generations living in Hampton, N. H., with such other items relating to the earlier families as had been obtained from various sources. The work has increased to the present volume and will, it is hoped, furnish a basis for the compilation by some one, of a complete history of all the descendents of the different branches. A. F. M.

NEW MARBLEHEAD, NOW WINDHAM, ME.
ECCLESIASTICAL MATTERS.

REV. G. M. BODGE, EAST BOSTON, MASS.

AMONG the conditions of the grant of the township of New Marblehead, those relating to the establishment and support of public worship were the chief.

The Proprietors were to lay out two full shares, one for the ministry (to be for the support of preaching) and one for the first settled minister (as his own private property.) Also that the said proprietors or grantees "shall settle a learned orthodox minister and build a convenient Meeting-house for the publick worship of God, within five years." At the meeting of the Proprietors in Marblehead, Mass., (where all except Thomas Chute still lived) held June 9th., 1737, it was voted to build the meeting-house as soon as possible. The meeting-house was to be "forty by thirty feet and ten feet stud." It was to be built on the Westernmost corner of the ministry Lot" (No. 33) East side of main Road and a space of ten rods square was to be cleared around it to prevent destruction by forest fires. A contract for building this edifice was made with Nathaniel Cogswell for the sum of one hundred pounds. The building was begun in the winter of 1737—8, but was interrupted by the Indians who forbade the workmen to proceed, and the work had to be abandoned. It seems probable from a reference in a petition of the Inhabitants to the General Court, years afterwards, that the building had been raised and boarded in, and was 38 feet long by 28 feet wide and 14 feet stud. According to the votes of the Proprietors previously given (pp 21—29) it appears that they voted to finish the meeting-house suitable for the use of the inhabitants, by laying a double boarded floor and putting four windows in the sides and ends.

April 16, 1741, it was voted to put the meeting-house in suitable condition and procure a Preacher according to the vote the year before. October 5, 1741, it was voted to hire Mr. Nicholas Hodge to preach, and to pay him forty-five shillings per. Sabbath for every Sabbath he shall preach. Mr. Hodge probably preached occasionally though, I find no record of it in the Proprietor's Book. He was then teaching school in Falmouth while pursuing his studies for the ministry. He was born in Newbury, 1719, graduated at Harvard College 1739. Taught the Grammar School in Falmouth 1737—1743, and died in the latter year. In 1742 Rev. John Wight of Dedham, Mass. supplied the pulpit for some twenty-nine Sabbaths, and on March 3, 1743 the Proprietors voted to treat with him concerning a permanent settlement as minister of the new parish. The Committee appointed to negotiate with Mr. Wight, on the part of the proprietors were James Skinner Esq., Capt. Nathan Bowen and Mr. Jonathan Proctor, They proposed, in accordance with the votes of the Proprietors, to pay him, upon settlement, £45, and allow him thereafter, £30 per annum out of their treasury of the Proprietors until the township should be regularly incorporated. The call was extended soon after the meeting of the Proprietors above noted and Mr. Wight, made answer from his home in Dedham March 25, 1743.

The letter of acceptance will be given below, but previous to that it is well to give a brief biographical notice of the man who became the first minister of the first Church in the town. A Genealogy of his family as complete as possible will be given in the department of Genealogy, but here only a sketch.

John Wight was the son of Daniel and Annah (Dewring) Wight, married in Dedham February 17, 1686. Their youngest son was John, born in Dedham April 22, 1699. He graduated at Harvard College in 1721 and became a teacher in the schools of his native town, and probably for several years pursued the study of divinity with some local minister according to the custom of the times. In 1728 he is mentioned as one of the subscribers to the history written by Mr. Thomas Prince, and is there referred to as of Bristol, Mass. It is probable that he was preaching there. July 3, 1728, he married at Dedham, Mary Pond, dau. of Jabez and Mary (Gay) who was born Nov. 22, 1706; and they lived for several years in Bristol, where their children John, Anna, Daniel or Benjamin and probably Mary were born. His wife Mary, died in Bristol June 19, 1735. He married Mrs. Deliverance Carpenter of Rehoboth in Oct. 1737. They had two children born in Bristol and both died there in July 1740. Elijah born in Dedham, August 5, 1742 died in New Marblehead October 24, 1744, aged 2 years 2 months and 19 days. Eunice, born in New Marblehead April 28, 1747. Benjamin, born March 19, 1753. The call was given and accepted in March 1743 and below is given the text of his answer to the call of the Proprietors, as recorded in their Record-book.

Mr. John Wight's answer to the proposals made him by the Committee appointed, therefor, for settling in the ministry at the Township according to former votes for that purpose.

GENTLEMEN :

I have considered the votes of the proprietors relating to my settlement in the ministry at New Marblehead (which I suppose are founded on the desires of the Inhabitants and interest of the Proprietors) as maturely as I am able in so short a time, and In answer thereto I hereby signifie to you Gentlemen, That I am willing to settle in the Ministry there upon Suitable Conditions, and as your votes mention my giving under my hand and seal That I will take upon me Ordination and continue in said Township and perform the Pastoral Office till Death, or I shall be orderly dismissed.

Gentlemen, In answer to which I say that I shall be willing to be ordained as soon as a church can be gathered there and if you will please to give assurance that your late vote shall be esteemed a call to settle there in the Ministry, so far as to entitle me, (upon my acceptance of it) to the settlement you have voted or may vote : And to the Lands Granted to the first Settled Minister, and will take some effectual care that I have my Sallery Continued after the Inhabitants and Settlers in said Township shall be incorporated into a Town; and in the mean time give me some further reasonable help and assistance in settling and add (if you think fitt) so much to my Sallery as to enable me to live comfortably on, which (I trust you will think) can't be less than to make it equal with what I had when I went as a transient Preacher there. I shall upon these conditions be willing to oblige myself under hand and seal to take upon me Ordination and settle in the Gospel Ministry there for life Agreeable to the Good Laws of the Province in that case made and Provided. And you may take this as an affirmative answer, wishing all Happiness Spiritual and Temporal, to you Gentlemen Proprietors, and to the Settlers at New Marblehead, and asking your prayers for me that I may be made the happy Instrument of promoting the Kingdom of Our Lord Jesus Christ, I remain Gentlemen

Your Obliged humble Servant

JOHN WIGHT.

Dedham March ye 25th, 1743.

ATTEST WM. GOODWIN—Clerk—

AGREEMENT BETWEEN REV. JOHN WIGHT AND PROPRIETORS OF NEW MARBLEHEAD.

This Indenture, made and agreed upon By and betwixt John Wight of Dedham, in the County of Suffolk, Gentleman, on the One Part, and the Proprietors and Grantees of the Tract of Land Granted to Sixty of the Inhabitants of Marblehead &c. &c. by their Committee, James Skinner Esq., Nathan Bowen, Gent. and Jonathan Proctor, Shoreman, on the other Part, Witnesseth, That the sd John Wight in consideration of the covenants & payments hereinafter mentioned on the part of the sd proprietors to be performed and done, Doth Covenant, Grant, and agree to and with sd Proprietors & to the Successors in manner following. That is to say, That the said John Wight shall and will within forty days from date of these presents, Repair to the said Granted Township and enter on the work of the Ministry to the Inhabitants there & shall within two months afterwards, (if desired) Receive Ordination to the Pastoral Care of that People according to the usage of this Province, and shall continue in that Office untill he be Orderly dismissed therefrom.

And the said Proprietors, by their aforementioned Committee do covenant and Grant and promise the sd John Wight his heirs Executors, and Administrators, That in consideration of the Service aforesaid to be by the said John well and faithfully performed, the said Proprietors will pay or cause to be paid the sd John Wight his heirs &c. &c. The full and just sum of forty-five pounds Lawful money of This Province &c. Viz. £15, on his entry upon said work, £15. within three months thereafter, and the Residue in three months after that, and further Thirty pounds yearly and every year after, that he shall continue and be in the exercise of his sd Pastoral office there until the Inhabitants shall be incorporated with powers and privileges of a Distinct Town. The sd yearly payment to begin and be accounted from the day of date hereof. And further The sd Proprietors shall and will use all proper means that the sd yearly allowance shall be further made and continued to the sd John, by the Inhabitants of the said Town after their Incorporation as aforesaid. In witness the said John Wight and the Proprietors aforesaid by their Committee, the said James Skinner, Nathan Bowen and Jona Proctor have hereunto set their hands and seals the 26th. day of March in the 16th. year of his Majesty's reign A. D. 1743. Signed Sealed and Delivered } in presence of us. } JOHN WIGHT & SEAL

ATTEST WILLIAM GOODWIN, Clerk

It appears that Mr. Wight began his work very soon as he gives receipts for ten pounds on March 28th. and for fifty pounds bills of credit (old tenor) the following August. The Meeting House was found to be in very bad condition and in September the votes of the Proprietors show that the votes taken for several years to repair it, had not been carried out, but now additional measures were taken, to build seats and a suitable pulpit. It was resolved not to prosecute Nath'l Cogswell for breach of contract, as had been voted at a previous meeting. It was also voted to pay to Mr. Wight the sum of seven pounds and ten shillings to defray the expenses of his Ordination, to be expended by him according to his judgment.

Mr. Wight had Lot No. 34 and acquired No. 35 upon which he built his house. The Meeting-House was built upon No. 33, and the Province Fort on No. 34. The Ordination of Mr. Wight took place December 14, 1743. We have no detailed account of the affair. The Records of the Falmouth Church preserve the item that Rev. Thomas Smith and the two deacons Henry Wheeler and Samuel Cobb were chosen delegates to attend. Mr. Smith in his Journal on Dec. 14 says only "Mr. Wight was ordained." As he does not mention that he preached the sermon it seems doubtful, as he was the senior minister in this vicinity, that would have been the usual course, unless some of the ministers from the older settlements in New Hampshire or Massachusetts should have visited Mr Wight for that occasion. It is likely that the ministers and delegates from Saco and Scarborough were present. We know that a small church was gathered here at that time, as a necessary preliminary to the settlement of a minister. Mr. Thomas Chute and his wife Mary with their daughter Abigail, were dismissed from the Church in Falmouth, which they had joined on removing from Marblehead in 1737. Thomas Haskel, lived in Falmouth near the New Marblehead line, but was dismissed in order to join the new church, there being a scarcity of members. Mr. Wight makes no record of the original members, but records the names of those admitted afterwards. But I think that Abraham Anderson and Bathshua his wife, Thomas Bolton and his wife Mary were original members. There may have been a few more.

HISTORICAL EXCERPTA FROM MY NOTE BOOKS.

BY J. P. BAXTER.

[Hitherto Unpublished.]

These notes are made as pointers simply to subjects of interest to the student of New England History, especially of Maine History, and are disconnected and fragmentary. Scraps of information like these are sometimes of considerable importance to writers on special subjects, though not of interest to others. The papers from which they are taken may mostly be found in the Public Records Office, London.

MATTERS RELATING TO DAVID DUNBAR, SURVEYOR GENERAL, IN THE PROVINCE OF MAINE.

Nov. 1, 1733.

OV. Belcher sent a message to the Assembly relative to the offer of Dunbar to pay the expenses of Fort Frederick till the King's pleasure might be known. The Governor said,

“But I should think it wou'd be more for the Honour of this Government that you made a suitable Provision for the support of that Fort and did encourage and protect these Infant Plantations.”

The Assembly voted

That the Governor “be desired (if he sees cause) to demolish Fort Mary at Winter Harbor so that it be no longer accounted a Fort, and remove the Officers and Soldiers with all the Artillery and Stores there to Pemaquid, where the old Fort was. Ordered that therefore the said Officers and Soldiers shall be retained on the pay of this Government for the space of three years next coming.”

Dunbar named the tract of land between the “Kennebeck and Sheepscot river “New Castle,” in honor of his patron.

April 4, 1733. Speech of Gov. Belcher to the Assembly.
GENTLEMEN:

Since I met you last Mr. Secretary has received a letter from the Honourable Col. David Dunbar from Pemaquid, which shall be delivered you, and there you will find he is removing from the Lands of the Province in and about Pemaquid, in conformity to His Majesty's Royal Orders, and that if any Soldiers should be sent down, they may be accommodated with House room within the Fort, and since there is now something done toward the rebuilding of that Fort, I hope you will make the necessary Provision for rendering it strong and defensible, for the KING'S Honour, and for the safety of that part of our Frontiers. This, doubtless, is the respect and duty you can express to His Majesty in return for His ready Justice and Goodness shown you in answer to your earnest solicitations for removing the said Col. Dunbar, and for His Majesty's, declaring at the same time His Royal Pleasure, that this Province and every particular Proprietor of the Lands before mentioned, should quietly enjoy their just and lawful rights."

To this no reply was made and on Aug. 15, 1733, the Governor again addressed the Assembly.

GENTLEMEN :

You may remember I laid before the Assembly in April last, a letter from the Honourable Col. Dunbar, mentioning his intention of removing from Fredericks' Fort, and from off the lands in and about Pemaquid; I am now to inform you, that I have received a letter from that Gentleman a few days since, which Mr. Secretary shall deliver you, giving an Account that he has fully comply'd with His Majesty's Royal Orders, and that the Fort is now without officers or men to take the least care of it and that there is also a great number of His Majesty's Subjects on these Lands, in very difficult circumstances for want of the Care and Protection of this Government, and for which they have made earnest application to me. I must therefore desire you now to look back on your repeated solicitations to His Majesty respecting that Country and to consider your great Obligations of duty and Gratitude to the KING for his Goodness in hearing and granting your Request; and then I would hope you will no longer let that Fort and country continue desolate and neglected, as at this Day; but that you will do what may be reasonably expected for the Honour of the KING'S Government, in the Protection and encouragement of the Settlements there,—and you will do well to consider of the Reasonableness of making an equitable Reimbursement to the Hon. Col. Dunbar, of his expense in Rebuilding the Fort, Barracks, &c.”

Col. Dunbar's letter here referred to was dated Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 10th, 1733.

Ater consideration of this communication from the Governour, the following answer was made to it.

“May it please your Excellency:

The House have very carefully considered that part of your Excellency's Speech relating to Col. Dunbar, and the Buildings he has erected at Pemaquid called Fredricks' Fort; and they readily and joyfully acknowledge His Majesty's great Justice and Goodness in confirming the Jurisdiction of this Province over those Eastern Lands and shall treat the people on them with the same Care and Justice as other His Majesty's Good Subjects in the rest of the Province, and who have the same Provision for Justice by Courts established in the Country to which they belong, as well as Justices of the Peace lately appointed by your Excellency living near Pemaquid, as other parts of the Province have.

But as it has been heretofore thought upon the most mature Consideration, that it would be of little or no Service to the Province, and a great Charge and Burthen to establish and support any Fort at Pemaquid, so this House cannot but think it would be laying a heavy and unnecessary Charge on the People we Represent, who are already under a great and almost insupportable load of Debt, to fix upon them the expense of a Fort or Garrison as your Excellency recommends, especially now in time of profound Peace.”

In a letter of Arthur Slade, to the Lord's Commissioners, June 29, 1734, the writer says that in 1730, David Dunbar appointed three country deputies to supply the place of his brother whom he sent to London, and promised to pay them liberally from the trees seized by them, which had been cut down unlawfully, but as they could get nothing from this, “they took upon themselves to grant Licenses to the country people to cut down the King's Woods, at pleasure, so that the whole Province of Maine was in a manner Farmed out to those that would give most, whereby the King's Interest was very much prejudiced and the Woods every where destroyed. “I made” he says, “progress into the Province of Maine where I obtained several of those licenses and transmitted them to the Surveyor General then residing at Pemaquid, at the same time advising him to dismiss those Country Deputies and appoint two Salary Officers—this advice best known to Surveyor General, was despised, and the matter dropt.”

Dunbar asked the opinion of the Advocate General, Shirley, in relation to some of his proceedings. Shirley replied May 6, 1734, “I am clearly of the opinion that you can't justify stopping vessels at the fort and advise to withdraw that Order forthwith.

The only method that I can think of in this case, is for the Deputy Judge to grant a Special Warr^t. to search all suspected vessels passing by the fort, the Boards having been taken away in contempt of his Decree. This might give some light, and might be justified.

The Order for Impressing of men etc, I think was very Regular. I don't think you are bound by law to bear the expenses of the wounded men. But as this is what common Humanity dictates should be done for the Honour of the Governm^t. The Gen^l Court unless they approve of this Riot and outrage ought to bear the charges as also of the Boat cut to pieces: But I don't apprehend y^t Col. Gilman is liable to answer for it, tho' it was in his custody, unless he was accessory to it." B. T. Pap. 24, B, 26, Public Records Office.

Dunbar impressed several men and sent them to Exeter to the Mills of Major Nicholas Gilman and his sons, to seize a quantity of pine boards, joist and logs which he claimed belonged to the king. This resulted in a riot, and his men were set upon and beaten; hence Dunbar asked to be advised whether he was legally liable for the expenses of taking care of those who were wounded, and disabled. He also gave orders to stop all vessels passing the fort so as to prevent the shipment of the lumber. All this caused a great commotion and Dunbar to excuse himself obtained affidavits of a plot to kill him by three Natick Indians, which was probably a hoax.

See Belcher's severe letter to Dunbar, May 2, 1734.

Dunbar accused Armstrong of illegal practices in selling logs contrary to orders.

April 25, 1734 was appointed a day of Public Fasting, "in consideration of the present commotions in Europe (which seem to threaten war among the Nations there, with which his Maj^{'ties}' Plantations in America will be affected) as also the present state of affairs in this Province, and of the occasions this Spring and Summer ensuing," but Dunbar refused to entertain it in New Hampshire and wrote an insolent letter to Gov. Belcher when it was sent him.

Dunbar fired upon a vessel passing the fort after refusing passage for three days, and Gov Belcher sent affidavits of the fact to England.

Nov. 13, 1733, Scheme for establishing a bank. The Assembly refused its sanction of the scheme.

The feeling against Dunbar ran high. Affidavits were printed and circulated bearing the names of Samuel Waldo, Ebenezer Holmes, Benjamin Pollard and William Shirley, that Elisha Cooke when he drank the health of Dunbar "Drank him as a Private Gentleman only, and not as Govenour of this Province."

May 8, 1734.

Dunbar, in a letter to the Lord's Commissioners, accuses his predecessors and their deputies of raising "contributions upon the loggers, who were very Disorderly upon being restrained by me and my Dept^s."

At the May meeting of the Assembly, 1735, Quakers were exempted from taxes for the support of religious worship, and the amount assessed on the other inhabitants.

During Gov. Bernard's administration the subject of the title of the Province, to land between the Penobscot and St. Croix assumed importance, and he wrote to the Lords of Trade calling their attention anew to the merits of the rival claims, which had for some time been before them. He said, "Some question has lately been made of the validity of Title of the Province to the Lands between the Rivers Penobscot and St. Croix, the merits of their claim has been at large laid before your Lordship."

Bernard also speaks of the great importance of the distillery of molasses into New England rum and the bad effect of obstructing it; that rum is largely used in the trade with Newfoundland and in the fisheries; is consumed by the inland inhabitants (perhaps too much) but after all is really necessary to the chief part of the trade. England need not fear "Trades and Manufactures set up here, since whatever is saved or gained here will be sent to Great Britain to purchase other things. Superfluities are laid out in luxury. American Luxuries is almost wholly supplied from Great Britian, therefore all profit in America must centre in Great Britain. Even illegal Trade where the balance is in favor of the British Subject makes its final return to Great Britain." An idea of the commerce of Massachusetts may be had from the Report of the number of vessels passing outward by Castle William from July 1, 1762, to July 1, 1763; viz: 40 Ships: 17 Scows; 107 Brigs; 178 Schooners; 294 Sloops: total 636.

“The whole supply of clothing is from Great Britian, except among the poor who make coarse cloth. Shoes are made in New England. Trade with Dutch and Danish Plantations, in one of the former, Suriname, the English have considerable estates.” During the war with France and before that with Spain a considerable trade with Monte Cristo; returns chiefly French sugar. No trade directly with French settlements called the ‘Flag of France trade’ because not approved by Great Britain.”

These are in Reports of the state of the American Colonies, p. 205-272 Brit. Mus.

The following will be interesting as showing how the Colonies were regarded in England.

“A short Discourse on the present state of the Colonies in America with respect to the Interest of Great Britain, by Sir William Keith, Knt. sometime Dep. Gov. of Pennsylvania.”

“Happy are the people whose lot it is to be governed by a Prince who does not wholly depend upon the representations of others, but makes it a chief part of his delight to inspect into the condition of his subjects;”—“Every act of dependent Provincial government therefore ought to terminate in the advantage of the Mother State unto whom it owes its being and by whom it is protected in all its valuable privileges.”

The great advantages the Colonies owe to G. Britain in consuming its products and furnishing ships and men necessary to support the Sugar Plantations in W. I. The colonies are only to be considered “as so many Corporations at a distance invested with ability to make temporary BY-LAWS for themselves agreeable to their respective situations and climates, but no ways interfering with the legal prerogative of the Crown.”

“They cannot be possessed of any rightful capacity to contradict or evade the true intent and force of any act of Parliament where-with the wisdom of Great Britain may think fit to affect them from time to time, and in discoursing on their legislative powers (improperly so called in a dependent government) we are to consider them only as so many Corporations.”

See Public Ledger, May 4, 1778. Address of English Roman Catholics on account of the present infamous Rebellion of the Independent and Presbyterian Colonists of New England and other Colonies seduced by them” to his Majesty, St. James, May 2, 1778.

“A week or two after this address, the Patriots, as they call themselves, with Sir George Saville at their head, moved in the House of Commons for a Piece of Justice never expected from that quarter; and may no ill design attend it! It was to repeal the sanguinary Laws against Roman Catholics, which have disgraced this country for above two centuries. It was opposed by Mr. Chas. Ambler, Kings Counsel and Solicitor General to the Queen.

Chas. Turner Esq., member for York, said he “Detested the cruel policy which reduced men, by nature free, to a state of slavery. Religion, he said, had always been an Engine in the hands of Power to enslave mankind. He wished to see his fellow subjects free. Catholics and Dissenters alike, and an universal Toleration established by Law.”

NOTES, QUERIES, ETC.

ALLEN.—I wish information concerning Peter Allen or his descendants who came to this country from Scotland in 1776 and settled in Portland and married about three years later. He left a large family some of the descendants of which I think live in Maine. He died in 1839 but where, I do not know, but think in Castine or Portland.

EDWARD ALLEN, War Department,
Washington, D. C.

DARLING.—I want information concerning the Darling family. Lois, or Louise Darling of Temple, N. H., married my great grand father, Peter Powers. I want to know who were her ancestors. Peter Powers was son of Gideon 4 and Ruth Powers of Temple, N. H. Any information will be gratefully received.

CAPT. D. D. WHEELER, Army Building,
Whitehall St., New York.

JOSSELYN.—Is there any evidence making clear the relationship between Thomas Josselyn who was in Hingham, Mass., in 1645, and Henry Josselyn of Maine. Is there any proof that Abraham son of above Thomas had an earlier wife Rebecca, and to indicate her family name or that she had children. Can any one give me the names of the children of Abraham, or give me any history of Thomas?

E. D. HARRIS, Stewart Building,
Broadway, Chambers and Reede Sts., N. Y.

MASSACHUSETTS ARCHIVES.—Any person wishing information supposed to be contained in the Mass. Archives may find a gentleman able and ready to assist them for a reasonable compensation by addressing.

GEORGE WILLIS BROWN,
Newtonville, Mass.

MATHEWS.—I want information concerning my grand father, Asahel Mathews, my father thinks he came from Eastern part of Mass. He was born in 1794, and married at Canterbury, Conn.; his wife was Hope Hollister, of Glastonbury, whose record, (Hollister family) I have to Pilgrim days. Through her father's record I am a member of Sons of Am. Revolution, as well as through my mother's line (Kellog.)

I imagine my grandfather's ancestors came from Scarborough, Me. Any information as to ancestors, birth place etc. of Asahel Mathews will be gratefully received.

H. E. MATHEWS, 120 Sutton St.
San Francisco, Col.

RICE.—I find in Scarboro Records Geo. and Ruth Thompson had Francis, bapst. May 20. 1749.

Geo. Thompson died May 16, 1753.
Joseph and Martha Rice had Mary, born 1738, died 1753.

Martha, wife of Joseph Rice died June 2, 1754.

Joseph Rice and Ruth Thompson married Aug. 12, 1755, and had Lemuel, Gideon, Nathaniel, James, and Richard. Joseph Rice died Nov. 22, 1776.

This looks as though Joseph Rice married for 2d wife Ruth, widow of Geo. Thompson, is this a fact?

Who were the parents of Joseph Rice?

JOHN O. RICE, 93 Exchange St.,
Portland, Me.

WARREN.—I wish information concerning the Warren family said to have settled in Berwick, Me. My grand father was Wm. Warren born in Berwick, Sept. 19, 1774, and I wish to learn the name of his father—my great grandfather—who was a soldier in the Revolution, under General Sullivan, and any particulars concerning him.

DR. JNO. S. WARREN,
204 West 38th St., N. Y.

English spelling is the worst in the world. Millions of dollars are wasted each year in the writing and printing of useless letters. The education of our children is retarded and the progress of our people is hampered by our cumbrous, illogical, misleading orthography. The scholarship of the world is almost a unit in demanding a change. The American Philological Association has recommended the following RULES FOR NEW SPELLINGS, and a resolution has been introduced in Congress, instructing the Public Printer to conform to them in all printing for the government.

1. Drop UE at the end of words like dialogue, catalogue, etc., where the preceeding vowel is short. Thus spell demagog, epilog, synagog, etc.

2. Drop final E in such words as definite and infinite, favorite, etc., where the preceeding vowel is short. Thus spell opposit preterit, hypocrit, requisit, etc.

3. Drop final TE in words like quartette, coquette, cigarette, etc. Thus spell cigaret-rosset, epulet, vedet, gazet, etc.

4. Drop final ME in words like programme. Thus spell program, oriflam, gram, etc.

5. Change PH to F in words like phantom, telegraph, phase, etc. Thus spell alfabet, paragraff, filosofy, fonetic, fotography etc.

6. Substitute E for the dithongs Æ and œ when they have the sound of that letter. Thus spell eolian, esthetic, diarrhea, subpena, esofagus, atheneum, etc.

¶ If you would array yourself on the side of progress, adopt the foregoing in all that you write, and especially in all that you PRINT.

ERRATA.

FLITNER Genealogy—p. 287—foot note. Should read; Castine 1779—Lovell, Brigr. General; Samuel McCobb, Colonel; William Howard, Lt. Colonel; James Hunter, 1st Major; Ezekial Pattee, 2d Major; William Stinson, Adjutant; Arthur Lithgow, Quartermaster; Zacheus Flitner, Surgeon. This is from the Official Record.

Near bottom of p. 348 the paragraph beginning "He married Sept. 20, etc," and ending with ("See note on Cutts family;") and also the note at bottom of same p., "Abigail M. Jackson," are duplicated from p. 345-6, and should have been omitted.

Near the bottom of p. 492 Mr. Emerson died in 1832; should be Mrs. Emerson.

By a mistake too late to correct, the pages in this volume were continued from the preceeding and the index to this is made accordingly.
